Pressure on for Nixon to set inflation curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under growing public pressure, President Nixon is expected to announce early next week what steps he will take to curb inflation, White House sources said Friday.

The sources said Nixon was studying a broad range of options, including a price freeze and a gasoline tax increase. The move was expected to be a sensational one, designed to allay public anger over high prices and divert attention away from the Watergate scandal.

The latest Gallup and Harris public opinion polls show that inflation tops the Watergate as the No. 1 concern of American citizens.

The President, who delivered a commencement speech at Florida Technological University Friday, hinted broadly he would act soon. But he did not spell out any of the details of his new economic plan.

Although the White House has announced there will be no antiinflation action over the weekend, there were indications it might come as early as next Monday.

The President's economic advisers were divided over what steps should be taken. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers and John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, all were reluctant to concede the voluntary controls under Phase III had failed.

A strong advocate of a free economy, Shultz is opposed to any new wage-price controls, according to an aide. He said Shultz believes the economy "will work its way out of the rising price dilemma."

But Nixon's other top advisers, including former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, have been arguing in favor of reimposing strict controls as existed under Phase II —which was lifted last January.

C. Jackson Grayson, chairman of the now-disbanded Price Commission which existed under Phase II, said in Dallas Friday the President should take a "series of determined, visible actions."

"I believe that Phase III needs more firmness, more visibility of action and a clear public understanding of the philosophy and the absolute commitment to achieve its goal," Grayson said. "I think the public doesn't feel this. Phase III does not have a good image."

On Capitol Hill, the Senate was expected to act next week on an amendment to a banking bill proposed Thursday by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to impose a 90-day freeze on wages, prices, rents, interest rates and dividends. If the administration does not act next week, Jackson said he will also seek to attach his amendment to another bill.

A vocal critic of the administration's economic policies, AFL-CIO President George Meany complained that the economy is generating too few jobs. Testifying before a Senate Labor subcommittee on the minimum wage bill, Meany was asked by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., how he would change the Phase III guidelines.

"I'm going to claim executive privilege on that question, senator," Meany replied. "You see, I'm a member of the group studying that question for the administration and I don't believe I can say anything at this time. But I think I'll have something very shortly."

Meany is a member of the Labor-Management Advisory Committee to the Cost of Living Council (CLC), which administers the administration's special economic guidelines.

Cites 'efforts to obstruct justice'

McCord seeks new trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James W. McCord Jr., facing sentencing in one week, asked a federal judge Friday to reverse his Watergate bugging conviction or grant a new trial because of "massive efforts in this case to obstruct justice" — including perjury by a Nixon campaign aide.

The former Nixon campaign security chief, whose post-trial allegations led to a new grand jury investigation and a wave of government resignations, made his plea in a 20-page motion filed with Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

"Perhaps never before in the annals of American law has such a web of conspiracy been designed to obstruct and impede the due course of justice," said McCord, who was convicted Jan. 30 of conspiracy, burglary, illegal wiretapping and bugging at Democratic headquarters at the Watergate last June.

McCord charged he was denied at his trial in January the defense that "he was acting under the direction of his superiors at the White House."

He also asserted that "on his own knowledge," he believes that Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director, committed perjury at the Watergate trial when he testified that no one higher than former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy was involved.

Magruder's testimony, he said, was "central to the whole theory of prosecution," and that it appeared Magruder's tainted statements were "knowingly and intentionally used by the prosecution" at the trial.

McCord said he was "enticed by high government officials" into the bugging operation and was unaware at the time of the existence of the White House team of "plumbers" —of which Liddy and fellow conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. were members —that was secretly established to plug leaks of classified security documents.

Pa. sues for school funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state of Pennsylvania filed suit Friday in U.S. District Court here challenging the administration's impoundment of $380.4 million in federal school funds for handicapped, needy, migrant, neglected and delinquent and other school children and adults under free education programs.

The civil suit against Budget Director Roy L. Ash, HEW secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and acting U.S. Education Commissioner John R. Ottina seeks release not only of $18.3 million appropriated by Congress for education in Pennsylvania but also of the full $380.4 million which it claims has been impounded unconstitutionally.

Appropriated funds for the bookkeeping year ending June 30 are being withheld from schools under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) of 1965, and the Vocational Educational Act of 1963 and the Adult Education Act of 1966, the suit alleged.

Under ESEA, some $311 million has been impounded illegally, the suit alleged, including $261 million in the largest program of federal education aid, the so-called Title I aid to needy and otherwise disadvantaged children for special reading, math and other education.

Train crash kills 2, hurts 40

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. — Two Penn Central Railroad commuter trains collided Friday night at a station outside New York City. Two men were killed and scores of passengers were injured. Officials at Mount Vernon Hospital said "five or six" passengers aboard the trains suffered heart attacks in the chaotic aftermath of the collision. Forty passengers were held for treatment at hospitals.

N. Viet officer sabotages plane

SAIGON — A flammable device carried aboard a U.S. C130 transport plane by a North Vietnamese officer exploded as the plane flew from Hanoi to Saigon Friday night. Seven persons were injured, including one American. Military sources said the senior North Vietnamese officer on board the U.S Air Force C130 signed a statement admitting a member of his delegation carried the device responsible for the explosion in his hand luggage.

Epsom salts contaminated

WASHINGTON — More than 900 cans of Epsom salts distributed across the country are contaminated with a toxic chemical that could kill a person who consumes it, the Food and Drug Administration said Friday. It identified the product as "Purpac Epsom Salt," packaged in one-pound cans bearing the lot number 012M4. The agency said anyone having such a can in his home should destroy the contents.

Fed raises money rate

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board, in an unusually tough move against inflation, raised its key discount rate Friday from 6 to 6.5 per cent, the highest in more than 50 years. It was the fifth time since January that the board has raised the interest rate commercial banks pay for money borrowed from the 12 district banks of the Federal Reserve system.

Gas ration hearings set

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department said Friday it would open public hearings next week to decide if the nation needs a rationing program to meet the current gasoline shortage or whether the present voluntary allocation system by major refiners is doing the job.

Tower collapse kills two

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — A broadcast transmitting tower more than 22 stories taller than the Empire State Building collapsed with a thunderous rumble of buckling steel Friday, killing two men working on it and injuring two others.

The Orange County sheriff's office identified the dead as Tommy Saunders and Warren Williams, employes of the Tower Maintenance of Florida Co., headquartered in Tallahassee. Another employe working on the structure, Eugene Hobby, suffered abrasions.

Hobby and Sherman Penny, a radio engineer for WDBO, were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Penny was being treated for shock suffered when portions of the tower fell on a WDBO transmitter building at the site and crushed part of the building while he was inside.

Officials were unable to determine immediately what caused the collapse of the four-year-old, 1,484-foot tower, which at one time was known as the world's tallest structure, located at nearby Bithlo, Fla.

Mark Saunders, owner of the tower maintenance firm, was on the ground and saw it collapse, then aided rescuers in cutting the body of his brother, Tommy, from the tangled metal.

Saunders said it seemed to him the tower "was under heavy stress—it was possibly overloaded and had too many antennas on it."

Skylab's 'fixit boys' set U.S. endurance record

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts set an American space endurance record Friday, fixed two more space station problems and then relaxed from a busy week by taking hot showers.

"Things are looking up," said commander Charles "Pete" Conrad as he, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz settled for the night.

"We all showered and shaved and everybody's in good shape," he told mission control in an evening status report. "We've got the good ship clean. She's all stowed. We'd like tomorrow's flight plan and we're ready to go."

The three astronauts gave up their scheduled day off Friday to do some housekeeping and catch up on experiment time lost before the spacewalk Thursday that gave them a power surplus.

"It's pretty nice now that we have all the juice back," Conrad told controllers as the pilots began the second half of their 28-day orbital marathon.

They were looking ahead to a possible double spacewalk in 11 days. On one venture outside they will change film from Skylab's solar telescopes and on the second the same day flight directors may ask them to erect a second awning over the station as insurance in case the umbrella they raised May 26 deteriorates in intense solar radiation.

Flight director Milton Windler said the pilots have a busy day of research scheduled for today, including a long earth resources observation survey.

Moth spray cited for pitting autos

STROUDSBURG — More than 100 cars at Mikels Motors, Stroudsburg, including a stock of new Oldsmobiles and Cadillacs, have been damaged by chemical spraying for gypsy moths, an official said Friday.

Stating "we are as positive as we can be" that the aerial spraying was responsible for the damage, the official described the effects of the spray as "a pitting type of thing" attacking the acrylic body paint.

The chemical responsible for the pitting has been sent for testing and results are expected to pin-point the responsible sprayer by Monday or Tuesday.

The official said the source of the problem has been narrowed to either Ag Rotor of Gettysburg, the firm dispersing Dylox for the Department of Environmental Resources, or Island Helicopter, a firm under private contract.

Without putting any figure on the damage, the official said it was "a substantial loss".

U.S.-Hanoi pact signing today?

PARIS (UPI) — Washington and Hanoi peace negotiators are close to agreement on ending Vietnam cease-fire violations and could sign a document today, American officials said Friday night.

The officials said, however, there was still the possibility of failure and the American side did not want to anticipate a conclusion to the talks until it was achieved.

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger called off a scheduled meeting with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho Friday for unexplained reasons and a two-hour technical meeting at lower level was held instead.

A new meeting betweeen Kissinger and Tho is scheuled to be held at suburban Gif-sur-Yvette today at 11 a.m. The officials said they should know by noon if the talks are successful.

Hanoi officials said earlier Friday there was still work to be done toward an agreement.

The postponement of Friday's high level meeting marked the second consecutive day that American negotiators had disrupted the schedule of talks on Vietnam cease-fire violations.

On Thursday Kissinger delayed a meeting for five hours and reports in Paris said the U.S. negotiators wanted to spend more time on their briefs.

Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, who led the Hanoi side at Friday's technical meeting, said the Kissinger-Tho session was called off "at the request of the U.S. delegation."

Acting FBI director calls for more control of agency

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus said Friday the legislative and executive branches of the government should exercise greater control over the FBI, and that both should re-examine their concept of the agency's role.

"The necessity to America of our major federal law enforcement agency's not exceeding a wise exercise of its power is too important to leave to the judgment of one man," Ruckelshaus said during commencement exercises at Ohio State University.

"There must be effective oversight of all FBI activities," he said. "This essential review and check should come from both the executive and legislative branches of our government."

However, both branches have failed to adequately provide this review, Ruckelshaus said.

"The legislative oversight is not sufficient today and needs to be strengthened," he said. "And the executive's understanding of the role of the FBI in our society needs sharpening."

Ruckelshaus referred to himself as the "ex-acting FBI director." President Nixon nominated Kansas City Police Chief Clarence M. Kelly as permanent director Thursday. The Senate must confirm Kelly's appointment.

He said the Watergate bugging controversy has raised the critical question of public morality in the country.

"It is not enough for a man to make the right decisions with the power invested in his position," Ruckelshaus said. "Those decisions, as well, must appear to be independent, thoughtful and in the public interest."

For the American government to function, its citizens must have faith that they are being "served by honest men honestly attempting to divine and serve the public interest," Ruckelshaus said.

"It is precisely this faith which is so badly violated right now," he said. "That is the tragedy of Watergate. If the stain of Watergate spreads indiscriminately across that essential faith, we will have experienced far more damage than those who attempted illegal entry into Democratic National Headquarters, or those who may have abetted them before or since."

FBI head approval good bet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate confirmation hearings for Clarence M. Kelley, nominated by President Nixon to be FBI director, will probably begin in about a week with chances of approval "pretty good," a congressional source said Friday.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, announced the scheduled start of the hearings in a brief statement.

General feeling among committee members, the source said, was that "going into the hearings he looks pretty good." It was reported the committee members were particularly eager to determine if Kelley would be independent of the White House and free from all political pressure."

Nixon named the 61-year-old Kansas City police chief, who served 21 years as an FBI agent, to replace the late J. Edgar Hoover as FBI director, but the nomination must be approved by the Judiciary Committee and then the full Senate.

Nixon's initial choice to replace Hoover was L. Patrick Gray, but the nomination was withdrawn when it became apparent the Senate would not confirm him because of his role in destruction of some papers pertaining to the Watergate scandal. Gray subsequently resigned as acting director and was succeeded by William D. Ruckelshaus.

There has been no expressed opposition to Kelley's nomination, although the committee source said "there are some rumblings that he hasn't been even-handed with minority groups" in Kansas City, "but nothing substantive to back that up."

Don't cry, George!

Meany to deal on pay bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said Friday he is ready to talk compromise with the administration on a minimum wage increase but that he is not prepared to "surrender our principles" just to get a bill this year.

Meany repeated before a Senate labor subcommittee his earlier call for an increase in the $1.60 an hour minimum to $2.50 in two years, but otherwise endorsed a House-passed bill and another introduced in the Senate calling for a boost to $2.20 by July 1, 1974.

Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan restated the administration's proposal to the panel on Thursday calling for an increase to $2.30 but over three years' time. Brennan said, however, the administration was "flexible" in its stand and was ready to discuss a compromise following House passage Wednesday of its $2.20 bill.

The House measure would extend coverage of the wage minimum to household domestics and local, state and federal government workers. It would also raise the present $1.30 an hour farm minimum wage to $2.20, but over three years.

"Are you willing to take the same position the administration took yesterday? That they're ready to listen ... ?" Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., asked Meany.

"Senator, back on Feb. 23 the secretary of labor said to me that we should sit down and see if we could reach some accommodation on minimum wage. I've never seen or heard from the secretary from that date to this," said Meany.

"That's one of the most regrettable things I've ever heard. You and the labor secretary, your own former union colleague, had had hardly any contact at all," said Javits.

"He said we should get together and if he wants to talk with me then we'll get together. But if you're saying we've got to surrender our principles in order to get a bill then I say we're not going to surrender," Meany said.

Ali pal, flamboyant candidate murdered

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI) — Major B. Coxson, an ex-convict mystery man and friend of former heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali, was shot and killed early Friday in his $200,000 mansion. His common-law wife and two of her three children were wounded.

Police said the third child told them the shootings occurred following "a talk" with four black men armed with revolvers, who subsequently escaped from the Coxson home in a black Cadillac.

Coxson, 43, who recently ran unsuccessfully for mayor of Camden, N.J., was bound and gagged and then shot in the head in his bedroom in this community across the Delaware River from Philadelphia.

The other three victims, Lois Luby, 35, her daughter, Lita, 14, and son Toro, 15, were also bound and shot in the head. They were hospitalized in serious condition.

Mrs. Luby's third child, Lex, 13, was tied up with neckties but managed to slip through a first-floor door and hop to the home of a neighbor who notified authorities about 4:30 a.m.

Ali, reached at a training camp Friday at Deer Lake, Pa., was described as being "shocked and very reserved, very reflective." He was quoted as saying, "I have clean hands. I am a Muslim. I believe in Allah, and Allah will always take care of me because I have always done the right thing."

Ali was a neighbor of Coxson and had put his $36,000 silver Rolls Royce at his friend's disposal. He also campaigned for him in last month's election.

According to Thomas J. O'Rourke, director of public safety in Cherry Hill, the four men drove up to the home about 4 a.m., honked the horn and were admitted by Coxson.

Skyjack battle killed 100 on Soviet airliner

MOSCOW (UPI) — A gunfight during the attempted hijacking of a Soviet passenger jet caused the plane to crash in southern Siberia two weeks ago, Communist sources said Friday. All aboard, estimated at 100 persons, were killed.

It was the first known crash of an airliner involved in a hijacking attempt.

The exact death toll was not known. The plane, a TU104 Aeroflot airliner, carries about 100 passengers, the sources said.

It was the second attempted hijacking of a Soviet airliner to be reported since April. The plane was over an area close to the Chinese border when the incident occurred, according to the sources.

Soviet newspapers have not reported the incident. The story was confirmed independently by Soviet and other Communist sources who gave similar versions.

The airliner was on a scheduled flight from Moscow to Chita, east of Lake Baikal, a distance of 3,100 miles. The exact site of the crash was not known, but the plane apparently was near the end of the trip. Scheduled airliners on the Moscow-Chita run make one stop, in either Irkutsk or Novosibirsk.

ITT affair will get 2nd airing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said Friday his special Watergate prosecutor was taking over an investigation into settlement of a federal antitrust suit against ITT because aspects of the cases have "begun to overlap."

The government settled out of court in 1971 after seeking a judgment that would have stopped the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. from acquiring the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. and several other major firms. Under the settlement, ITT was permitted to keep Hartford while selling off its interest in some of the other companies involved.

Critics have said the Justice Department agreed to the terms after ITT executives sought aid from high administration officials, with the promise of money to help underwrite costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention, and that documents dealing with these communications were suppressed in possible obstruction of justice.

Richardson, in a letter to Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he had turned the ITT inquiry over to Archibald Cox, the Harvard law professor in charge of the government's Watergate investigation.

Air standards hit for energy drain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high-ranking Interior Department official told Congress Friday federal clean air standards are "on a collision course" with the nation's ability to supply energy to heavily populated and industrialized areas.

Assistant Interior Secretary Stephen A. Wakefield told the Senate Interior Committee that primary air quality standards under the Clean Air Act, set to go into effect in two years, may disqualify "an enormous volume of coal now being used to generate electric power" because of its high-sulphur content.

"Corrective action is urgently needed," Wakefield said.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., who was presiding at the time, told Wakefield he was "very courageous" in making the statement. Randolph said the Senate Public Works Committee, which he heads, will be holding hearings soon on possible changes in the clean air laws.

Wakefield testified it was difficult to make substitute fuels available in the volumes required in time to meet the coal shortfall which would be caused by the standards.

"The strict application of the air quality standards ... as currently scheduled, would greatly increase our present requirements for residual fuel oil, with most of the incremental demand coming in a region —the Midwest—which never used significant amounts of it for power generation," he said, "and in which no distribution system capable of sustaining requirements of this order exist.

Gettysburg tower halts

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Supreme Court Friday issued a temporary injunction halting construction on the controversial Gettysburg tower.

The injunction was the first battle the state has won in its two-year legal fight to stop the building of the $2 million tourist attraction at the site of the Gettysburg battlefield.

The high court issued the order pending a June 27 hearing.

According to a spokesman for Maryland developer Thomas Ottenstein, work on the tower is nearly half finished. Construction began last August.

The spokesman said the tower is now 160-feet tall.

State worker pension hike bill set for action

HARRISBURG (UPI)—A bill to hike the pensions of the vast majority of approximately 20,000 retired state employes will reach the floor of the State House of Representatives Monday.

Tagged as a cost-of-living increase, the $8,390,000 a year extra costs of the bill would fall on the State Employes Retirement Fund. Costs were estimated by the Fund's actuary.

Sponsored by Rep. George W. Gekas, R-Dauphin, the bill was released by the House State Government Committee headed by Rep. Guy A. Kistler, R-Cumberland, whose committee had held the bill since Feb. 26.

Initially Gekas' bill had provided that added costs be covered by state lottery funds, but it was amended in committee to put the added cost on general taxes.

The bill would grant flat increases ranging from five per cent for state employes who retired in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1971, to 30 per cent for annuitants who retired in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1966 or earlier.

Ehrlichman testifies before Ellsberg break-in jurors

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former White House top aide John Ehrlichman testified for two hours Friday before a county grand jury investigating the burglary of the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ehrlichman said afterwards that he "tried to answer all questions put to me fully," but that he would not discuss the content of his testimony at the request of the grand jury foreman.

The one-time right hand man to President Nixon had said previously that he did not know of the 1971 break-in of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding in advance although he set up a White House team to investigate national security leaks.

Two of the men on that "plumbers" squad were Egil "Bud" Krogh and David Young who in turn assigned Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt to carryout "covert" operations.

Immediately after Ehrlichman's appearance, District Attorney Joseph Busch announced that Krogh would be subpoenaed Monday to appear before the grand jury after backing down on a reported previous offer to appear voluntarily.

Busch said that conversations were still underway with Young, a former member of the National Security Council, as to whether he would agree to appear voluntarily.

Franco names 'heir'

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's unchallenged ruler since 1939, took the first concrete step toward transferring power Friday by appointing a conservative and traditional navy man to succeed him as prime minister.

The government Information Ministry announced that Vice President Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco will be sworn in as prime minister today. Franco, now 80, will retain the three other top posts in Spain: head of state, commander in chief of the armed forces and head of the country's only political party, the "National Movement."

El Caudillo ("the Leader") already has designed Prince Juan Carlos to be the next king of Spain on Franco's death.

A 30-word announcement by the information ministry Friday said Carrero Blanco will be sworn in at Franco's El Pardo Palace. His official title will be president of the Spanish government. Under the constitution, his first task will be to form a new cabinet.

Portland Water Authority prepares to go into action

PORTLAND — The newly-formed Water Authority of Portland is ready to go into action, authority secretary Walter Emery told borough council this week.

The authority will oversee a variety of "improvements to the whole water system," according to Mayor Golden.

The improvements will include patching reservoir leaks and improving the quality of the borough's water.

Council also heard complaints from several residents this week over "unhealthy and weedy conditions" in borough yards, specifically that of Russell Strunk, on the corner of Collins Avenue and Main Street.

Strunk, an antique car buff and former garage owner, had several cars and car parts in his yard.

However, only two of the vehicles are unlicensed, he said.

Strunk agreed to clear away the tires and car parts offending his neighbors, one of whom apologized afterwards for even bringing the issue before the borough council.

The complaint was referred to the planning commission and newly-hired zoning officer, council said.

However, the council complained of its inability to enforce ordinances against unsightly properties until now.

This laxity, council members said, occured because of lack of a borough police force and, until recently, a zoning officer.

The borough hired Fred Snyder as zoning inspector earlier this year; as of June 1, it is receiving additional protection from the Upper Mount Bethel Township force.

The borough council also allocated $250 from revenue-sharing funds for the Portland Ambulance Corps new $15,000 ambulance.

Classroom bids tabled by board

MATAMORAS — At a special meeting Thursday, the Delaware Valley School Board postponed action in regard to bids for the construction of two portable classrooms to be used at the Milford Elementary School.

Action was postponed until the board's regular meeting on June 14. The special meeting was held at the high school for the purpose of receiving bids on the classrooms which the directors desire to put in use next September.

While two bids were received, they actually amounted to only one complete bid. The Equipment and Furniture Company of Conshohocken bid $41,715 on the classroom units only,. while Dorsan, Inc. of Honesdale bid $14,500 on the site and foundation work.

District Superintendent Dr. S. William Rinker, while recommending the bids be studied by the district's architectural firm, Buchard Associates, before action was taken, noted that the district had budgeted $44,000 for the classrooms and the expenditure of a greater amount would probably result in the curtailment of other school programs.

An alternate course for the district would be to rent classroom space, probably in one of the churches in Milford.

Consumer program

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Consumer Affairs Council will meet at 7:30 p.m., June 21 in Room 210 of Stroud Hall at the East Stroudsburg State College campus.

Plans to coordinate future activities and an awareness of existing consumer products will be discussed.

Various types of consumer information, including consumer complaint forms, will be distributed to council members for their respective committees.

A slide series on consumer shopping tips will also be a part of the program.

Medical fund donations grow

TAFTON — Volunteer workers for the Wallenpaupack Area Medical Foundation, encouraged at the thought of having a doctor in the foundation's temporary facility starting June 18, have been making calls for donations and their results have been rewarding.

Bill Robbins of Robbins Door and Sash Company of Wilkes-Barre has sent in a check in the amount of $5,000. Mrs. Harold Gumble's team has turned in over $4,700 in the past two weeks. Phase two of the fund-raising drive is underway.

Various organizations have planned benefits, the next one will be the opening night of the Tanglwood Diner-Theater on Friday, June 29 at the Tanglwood Ski Area.

Summer scene

Two local residents were discussing the early summer scene the other day.

"I don't suppose you will be glad to see school close with those two boys living next door to you."

"One of them may go to camp."

"Camp Hill?"

"Oh, they are not so bad. One of them even offered me a ride on his motorcycle the other day."

"Is that the one that was always pinching his sister?"

"Oh, he's older now, he just pinches her girl friend."

"I feel sorry for their mother."

"Well, she is a little slow. She thinks "Deep Throat' is a cough syrup."

"What do you think of the building that is going up down the street?"

"I'm glad to learn it will be a business establishment. I thought it was going to be an army barracks."

"It won't be long before all the summer people will be back."

"Did they ever leave?"

"Yes, I prefer them to the gypsy moth."

"You have to realize that the country is changing, Pike County is changing, Milford is changing."

"If my grandfather was alive he would sure notice it!"

"For instance?"

"For instance, that deep swamp hole he always got wet in when he went huckleberry picking is now a lake and a lakefront lot was just sold there for $40,000!"

"Didn't your grandfather ever make any money off the land?"

"Yes, he used to get 15 cents a quart for the huckleberries."

"You sound bitter."

"I just wish there was some way I could get ahead of some of the people in this town."

"The next time that boy offers you a ride on his motorcycle — take it."

People can stop vandalism

It's all too easy to dismiss what those unknown miscreants did at the Stroudsburg playground as vandalism. It is more than that. It is criminal, stupid, vicious, unthinking, harmful and childish.

Maybe because it is all those things, we cannot come up with a solution for the sort of actions we lump under that handy heading: vandalism.

It does little good to editorialize against vandalism. Those who read such columns agree wholeheartedly: They are the sort of people who would never do such things. Those who do such things, on the other hand, don't read, apparently. There is no other explanation for their abysmal idiocy.

A program has to be mounted to stop them. Unfortunately, it is costly, which adds to the criminal damages accuring to those acts of vandalism. Lights must be installed; fences must be built, locks installed and even watchmen hired to insure the safety of public conveniences such as playgrounds.

But the public can help, too. Neighbors can keep a sharp eye (and ear) out for unusual activity. A quick call to the police — and a willingness to become involved, to defend our freedoms — would be of great help in apprehending those responsible for the damage.

After that, you can follow a number of courses. Some communities insist that parents are responsible for the actions of their offspring and make them pay the damages. Others feel each individual is responsible for his own acts and make the vandals repair the damage they have done, and pay for it, too.

There is no sociological excuse in Stroudsburg, where facilities are convenient and open to all, for the sort of childishly stupid acts that have been committed. The only possible reason is that some people don't care enough to become involved in helping to stop them.

Which puts them into the same boat with those whose lack of brains leads them to damage public property — built for their enjoyment as much as anyone else's — just for the "kicks" they get out of throwing a bottle into a pool. We feel sorry for all of them.

Over 55 elderly?

A while back, we pressed for establishment of an Office of the Aging, and it pleases us to note that the office, having been established and staffed with a fulltime director, will have its grand opening Sunday, with Open House from 5-7 p.m.

The only thing that bothers us is that, having noted there are 10,000 people over 55 in the county, the office goes on to state its purpose is "to assist the elderly in maintaining their individuality, self-care and independence."

Fifty-five is elderly? Come, now. We know the youth mania has gripped the country, but this is ridiculous! We have always felt that "elderly" applied to people past 70. Anything before that was middle age, and from 65 on, you were "actively retired".

At 55, a person, if not in physical prime, should be in mental prime of life. Unless he or she is sickly, that is. Then all bets are off. But elderly! Can't we have a few more years of looking ahead to an active life before being left to contemplate only a dignified death?

Semantics and definitions aside, we are pleased to have the Office of the Aging here in Monroe County. It can and, we're sure, will do great things for the elderly. Just leave us out of that category for a few more years, please?

Today was a bad day. I sprayed my hair with disinfectant, waxed a table with spray deodorant, and tried to kill a bug with hair spray. My hair is a mess, the table looks bad but smells good, it wasn't a total loss — the bug died.

Mother's cute tricks

Supposed to have happened to Jennifer W. at a McDonald's hamburgery. "Forgive me for staring," this elderly woman told her, "but you look SO much like my daughter. She's dead."

"Oh, that's sad," replied Jennifer.

"Please do me a favor," the woman went on. "when I leave, call out 'Bye Mom!'"

Of course, agreed Jennifer, feeling a bit silly but complying.

When Jennifer started out, a few minutes later, the attendant said, "That'll be $4.65 — your burger and Coke and things your mother left with."

Whalley and Collins

WASHINGTON — Two congressmen, whom we have accused of irregularities that seemed like illegalities to us, may wind up in court after all.

The U.S. attorney's office here in Washington is quietly working up cases against Rep. James Collins, R-Tex., the dapper Dallas millionaire, and ex-Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., the banker, churchman and former U.N. delegate.

We accused both men of chiseling petty sums from their help. Our previous stories about kickbacks brought convictions against four congressmen, but the Justice Department seemed uninterested in prosecuting Collins and Whalley.

In the Collins case, for example, the Justice Department convicted not Collins but his 34-year-old former assistant, George Haag, for arranging the kickbacks. Yet Collins admitted to us during our original investigation that he was fully aware of the kickback arrangement.

Subsequently, we quoted excerpts from Collins' private papers which indicated he was trying to manipulate the FBI investigation. It is this angle that the U.S. attorney's office is now pursuing. A federal grand jury will decide whether Collins should be indicted for obstructing justice.

In the Whalley case, Pittsburgh's U.S. Attorney Richard Thronburgh recommended prosecution based on a painstaking, year-long FBI investigation. The case has now been submitted to the U.S. attorney in Washington for possible indictment.

In the wake of Watergate, the Justice Department suddenly has shown more interest in prosecuting prominent Republicans.

BLOOD MONEY: Hundreds of hungry Haitians, the western hemisphere's poorest people, lined up on the Port-au-Prince waterfront day after day last year to sell their blood. Each donor was paid three dollars and a bottle of soda pop for a donation of blood plasma. The American promoters rang up a larger profit, estimated between $500,000 and $1 million for the year.

Eventually, the daily blood letting attracted unfavorable press notice. This upset Haiti's Jean-Claude Duvalier, at 21 the world's youngest president, known to his subjects as "Baby Doc," who has been striving to give his impoverished little country a better image.

He, therefore, canceled the 10-year contract with the American firm, Hemo-Caribbean, and dismissed his defense minister, Luckner Cambronne, for taking kickbacks from the blood suckers. The last word out of Port-au-Prince was that Hemo-Caribbean had closed down and Cambronne had fled the country.

But ever so quietly, Hemo-Caribbean has changed its name to Life Services and has hired a powerful Washington law firm to pull political strings. The firm's Joe Sharlett and Milton Barall recently arranged a quiet luncheon on Capital Hill.

Meeting held

They sat Haiti's Foregin Minster Afrien Raymond and Ambassador Rene Chalmers down with Chairman Dante Fascell, D-Fla., of the House Subcommittee on Inter-American Relations. Also present was D.C. delegate Walter Fauntroy, a black leader, whose appearance presumably was intended to impress Haiti's own black leaders.

Both Fascell and Fauntroy denied they had attended the luncheon to help Hemo-Caribbean get back into the blood business in Haiti. But unknown to them, Sharlitt followed up the luncheon meeting with a letter to the Haitian ambassador, suggesting that praise would be arranged in Congress for Haiti if the blood operation were resumed.

"After an appropriate interval of time following reopening," wrote Sharlitt, "we will instruct our counselors to endeavor to secure mention on the floor of our Congress of the . . . final success in resolving a dispute that arose between a private American firm and the Haitian Government . . . .

"It is our belief that if the Hemo-Caribbean plants are reopened, such a statement can be secured. The impact of such a statement on potential U.S. investors in Haiti would be most salutary."

'Irritable colons'

Many years ago I was told that I had an "irritable" colon. I have always attributed my intestinal complaints to this.

Now I have been told that I do not have this condition, but that my problem is caused by long years of enemas and laxatives.

Is there such a thing as an "irritable colon"?

Mrs. S.F., Maine

Dear Mr. F:

The term "irrtiable colon" once captured people's fancy and became almost a term of medical prestige. The word was bandied about almost as if it had special medical status.

The result was that this very real condition was self-diagnosed with great promiscuity, and most often, wrongly.

In reality, doctors do recognize a condition of irritable colon which is sometimes called a "spastic colon." So many factors are involved that the "irritable colon" can well be described as a complex of symptoms rather than a single condition.

Many people who are overworked, tense, anxious, and emotionally upset reflect these problems in the poor functioning of the intestinal tract.

Hurried meals, certain drugs, dependence on laxatives and enemas add to upset the proper motility of the large intestine. The result is that abdominal pain, distention of the bowel with gas, excess mucous, and spasm of the lower bowel may follow.

It is important that you forget specific terms that were used to describe your complaints.

Now is a good time to give up your dependence on laxatives and enemas and have a complete re-evaluation of your entire gastrointestinal status.

When once you are assured that you have no serious underlying condition, a well-established program of diet and exercise, supported by drugs carefully chosen by your doctor to reduce emotional tensions, will relieve the symptoms that have plagued you for such a long time.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Nixon not entitled to screen

Editor, The Record:

Absurd! It is the only reply one can conceive for Mr. Beger's attack on Ms. Van Vliet. Certainly the Queen of England gets a million dollars. However, it is a million to which she is entitled by law.

Unfortunately, Nixon wasn't entitled to the $70,000 screen, which, incidentally, appeared sometime in February, in the New York Times, I believe. Nor to the $32,000 heating system which he says he accidentally charged to the government. That story appeared on October 1972.

Another interesting note, in 1968, prior to the election, Nixon's entire financial assets rounded off to a little more than $80,000 and today, after being paid a mere $100,000 for four years, he has amassed a personal wealth of $2.5 million as of October. Yes, only in America!

In case you've forgotten, the honorable Richard Nixon came before the nation to declare his innocence and ignorance of Watergate, yet only a few shorts weeks after his impassioned plea of purity, we now find him saying, well, I really did know about it. Doesn't the President lying to the nation on television mean he may be a no-good, as Ms. Van Vliet has suggested?

If you will remember your history, actually it was only two weeks ago that testimony was given to the Senate committee investigating Watergate that orders had come to the FBI from the White House to destroy their files on Watergate and to see that the Gemstone files, which are what one witness described as things which shouldn't happen in America, were destroyed. Certainly we won't find the evidence you demand for proof; it has been destroyed.

No, Mr. Beger, the Democrats aren't the poor losers, the people of America are. They voted Nixon into office. In closing I would say your comparison of Watergate to Chappaquidick is faulty in only one way, although both were very serious. Sen. Kennedy went to court to testify, while Nixon is hiding in the White House.

Thanks to bike riders

Editor, The Record:

The Monroe County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children wishes to thank the many riders and sponsors who made the bike ride Sunday such a success.

We are happy to report that $3,500 was raised in our county to further our work both locally and state-wide.

There were almost 200 riders and three times as many sponsors. The money is steadily coming in and we hope to close our books as soon as possible. Mail or deliver your checks and donations to the rider whom you sponsored and the rider will see that our treasurer, Rose Paula Kennedy, receives these funds.

Her address is 333 Green Tree Drive, Apt. D 14, in East Stroudsburg. Questions may be directed to her at 421-8323.

Again, thank you Monroe Countians for your efforts in producing such fine results! Be it known that Ride-A-Bike Day for 1974 is scheduled for Sunday, April 21. If we did so well on our first attempt, we ought to double our results the second time around.

Testified as individual

Editor, The Record:

I wish to clarify information given in a June 5 Record article entitled "Monroe Groups Oppose Rate Hikes". The article stated that the Monroe County League of Women Voters testified in opposition to the 26 per cent rate hike proposed by the Metropolitan Edison Company.

In actuality, I submitted testimony as an individual, not as an official League representative.

The League of Women Voters urges its members to actively participate as informed citizens. It does not necessarily support, or even evaluate, the activities of particular members except to forbid "active partisan campaigning". The League of Women Voters has made no study of the Met Ed rate hikes and has no position on them.

While as an individual, I commend and thank The Pocono Record for their coverage of our (the three couples mentioned in the article) efforts with the Public Utilities Commission, as a League representative, I must insist that the League of Women Voters has no position at all concerning the Met Ed rate hikes.

Squatters big problem?

Editor, The Record:

There are many problems with the squatters at Shawnee-on-Delaware. Many problems have to do with some of the large quantities of marijuana that is used by many of the squatters.

Many people claim that the squatters have burned different buildings and barns, they also claim that there has been stealing going on at Shawnee-on-Delaware.

A big question asked is why doesn't the Attorney General give the state police the right to remove the squatters from the area of Shawnee-on-Delaware?

There was a time when a family could go to Shawnee-on-Delaware and have a good weekend of fun and fishing, but now a family is actually afraid because they fear harm might come to them.

Soviet petroleum politics

WASHINGTON — In a recent column I pointed out that Iraq now appears to be the key Middle Eastern nation in the eyes of Soviet strategic planners: a highly flexible aid-plus-arms treaty recently concluded between the two nations permits the Soviets to regulate via Iraq the supply of arms to assorted insurgent movements in the Middle East and Africa.

Intelligence analysts have also noted how Soviet crude oil policy reinforces this overall design.

Thus in 1972 Iraq emerged as the largest exporter of crude oil to the Communist bloc, increasing its deliveries by more than 600 per cent that year: from 0.6 million tons in 1971 to 5.0 million tons in 1972

Bugaria is favored

The major portion of this Iraqi oil goes to Bulgia, partly for geographical reasons, but also because Bulgaria has long been the most subservient — i.e., reliable — nation in the COMECON (Council for Mutual Economic Assistance) bloc. Thus it is clear that Soviet policy makers, concerned to establish maximun control over the flow of petroleum, have settled upon Iraq and Bulgaria as the most reliable instruments of Soviet policy.

Colonel Qaddafi of Libya, who expropriations plus anti-Israeli and anti-Western statments have made him unpopular here, appears to rate no higher in Moscow. In 1971, Libyan deliveries to the COMECON bloc showed a sharp increase, from 0.1 to 0.7 million tons. Not coincidentally, that was the period of the seizure of British petroleum facilities, the expulsion of the U.S. from Wheelus, and, from the Soviet standpoint, maximum opportunity in Libya. But since then, Qaddafi has helped crush a Soviet-backed Communist coup in the Sudan and cracked down on Communists in Libya. A zealous Moslem and nationlist, he clearly inspires little confidence in Moscow. Libyan oil deliveries to COMECON therefore showed little increase in 1972.

Reading the politics of oil in these terms, it is possible to discern the Middle Eastern lineup as it appears to Soviet policy makers. Iraq primarily, but also Syria, enjoys favored status in Soviet eyes. Libya, Algeria and Egypt, despite the frequently anti-Western rhetoric of their leaders and controlled press, are being downgraded.

Deal with Germany

Petroleum, moreover, is destined to play an increasing role in the politics of the region during the second half of the 1970s. The Soviet bloc uses more crude oil than it can itself produce, and the gap is steadily widening. Nevertheless, the Soviet Union, for global-political reasons. wants to become a principal supplier to West Germany. In the recent Brandt-Brezhnev economic and industrial negotiations, the Soviets made much headway in gaining German assistance in the fields of chemicals, nuclear energy, electricity and minerals. What Germany requires in return is more crude oil.

A number of important conclusions emerge from this analysis. First of all, the main direction of Soviet Middle Eastern policy now seems relatively settled. After some years of political probing in the area, Soviet interest has shifted in a systematic way eastward, to the Persian Gulf area. Second, Soviet oil policy is firmly wedded to political designs, not only in the Middle East but, especially, in Western Europe.

Cubs camp out along Delaware

MOUNTAINHOME — Webelos Den 1, Cub Pack 89 of Barrett had its first Father and Son Overnight Campout recently along the Delaware River near Bushkill.

Eight Cubs and their chaperones departed on Friday from the Barrett YMCA and upon arriving at the campsite pitched their tents. Larry Seese, den chief, opened the Council with the Traditional Scout Camp Ceremony.

Saturday's activities included a hike on the Appalachian Trail to the fire tower located at the point of Delaware Water Gap.

A few courageous boys took a frigid dip in the river while others gathered fire wood.

Cubs turned cooks and prepared a gourmet meal of hamburgers and a special treat of birch tea made from birch bark gathered by the boys.

After the cookout Cubs gathered the campfire, presented comic stunts and participated in group singing.

Typical of all Scout camps, the American Flag was raised with the ceremony in the morning and retired at sunset.

Other activities during the outing included attending church on Sunday in full uniform, boating and fishing. Angler's luck prevailed with 20 fish being caught.

Participating in the campout were Walter Habb and son Rudy; Tom McCain, Webelos leader, den one and assistant cub master and son Gary; Jim Manhart and son Eddy; Jim Rinehart and son Jimmy; Thane Flores and his brother Sam; Ricky Monihan and Bob Clay; Rev. George Curtis and son Roger; Larry Seese, den chief; and Rev. Ray Williams of the Canadensis Moravian Church.

The Cubs and their fathers extended their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lee who hosted the group over the weekend.

St. John's Church of Bartonsville . . . changing affiliations.

Founded in 1846

Bartonsville church joins ECC

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

BARTONSVILLE — St. John's Church of Bartonsville, organized in 1846, incorporated in 1873 and formerly known as St. John's Lutheran Church, has officially decided to become affiliated with the Evangelical Congregational Church.

Although 32 voting members officially voted in favor of the new affiliation at their February 25 meeting, St. John's was not accepted as a member church by the ECC until this month at the group's annual conference held at York.

According to Church Council President Robert Field, the congregation is filled with enthusiasm and zeal and is optimistic about its future as an ECC parish.

The Rev. A. R. Kratzer, D.D., who has been serving as supply pastor at the church for the past five months, said he felt the church had a real future because of the determination of the people.

Explaining he felt there would be no difficulty at all for parishioners during the affiliation transition, Rev. Kratzer explained that the ECC church was more or less middle of the road, that it was a fundamental church without being fanatical.

He stressed that the ECC philosophy placed emphasis on individuality and did not attempt to "stand between the kingdom and the individual."

Explaining there was a special emphasis placed on the Gospel in the ECC philosophy, Kratzer also said the church believed in free worship.

The land at St. John's Church was originally donated by Abraham Custard in 1836 for the purpose of spreading the Gospel and providing for a burial ground. The adjoining school on the property, which now serves as the parish house, is built on land also donated by Custard.

The first St. John's church was officially consecrated on May 28, 1845 by pastor George Heilig, the Evangelical Lutheran minister who served the church until 1857.

Pastors since that time have included Adolphus Rumpff, Samuel S. Kline, Henry Seifert, Joseph Focht, George Roth, Richard Henry Clare and Cyrus Held.

Also, C.W.T. Strausser, Norman Kellow, James G. Shannon, John B. Bergstresser, Robert Zuch and William Beck.

The Rev. Leon Zinkler served as supply pastor for the congregation from July 1969, to August, 1970.

Originally St. John's Lutheran Church was a member of the four-church parish of Hamilton Lutheran.

The parish changed to a three-church organization approximately 10 years ago and contained St. John's, Mt. Eaton of Saylorsburg and Zion Church of Brodheadsville.

Last year Mt. Eaton became United Church of Christ-affiliated and the Zion church, formerly UCC and Lutheran, became strictly Lutheran affiliated.

At the time, the Lutheran Church suggested that the St. John's parish merge with a neighboring congregation or disolve. Since the parishioners wanted to retain their local church, they investigated affiliations with several groups including the ECC church during the last several years.

On Feb. 22, 1973, the church became incorporated as St. John's Church of Bartonsville. The Lutheran Church deeded both the church and cemetery property to St. John's Cementary Association, which became a non-profit corporation in March of 1972.

St. John's one-third interest in the Brodheadsville parsonage was given to the Lutheran Church.

The congregation currently contains approximately 80 members.

For more information regarding the church, residents can get in touch with Rev. Kratzer by phoning 421-2894.

Area Jehovah's Witnesses to hold Bible meetings

EAST STROUDSBURG — John S. Michael Jr., spokesman for the East Stroudsburg, Mount Pocono and Brodheadsville congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses, has announced that three divisions of Pennsylvania Circuit No. 2 will be meeting on successive weekends in June at their Assembly Hall located in Buckingham, Bucks County.

Local Witnesses are in the B group and will meet on June 23 and 24.

An identical program for these assemblies has been arranged by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society. William Van DeWall, district overseer, has been assigned as the principal speaker and coordinator of all the sessions.

"Do All Things for God's Glory," the chosen theme, is based on the apostle Paul's first letter to the congregation at Corinth.

Local Witnesses participating in the program will pursue the Bible's counsel on the following subjects: "Maintaining a Proper Viewpoint toward the Scriptural House-to-House Ministry," — Acts 20:20; "Not Giving Up in the Doing of What Is Fine," — Galations 6:9 and "Using Our Bible-Trained Conscience to Make Right Decisions."

The program Sunday afternoon will highlight the address by Van DeWall titled "Decide Now for Divine Rulership."

The assemblies will then close with two half-hour discourses: "Supply to Your Faith . . . Endurance," — 2 Peter 1:6 and "We Shall Walk in the Name of Jehovah Our God Forever," — Micah 4:1-5. All sessions are open to the public.

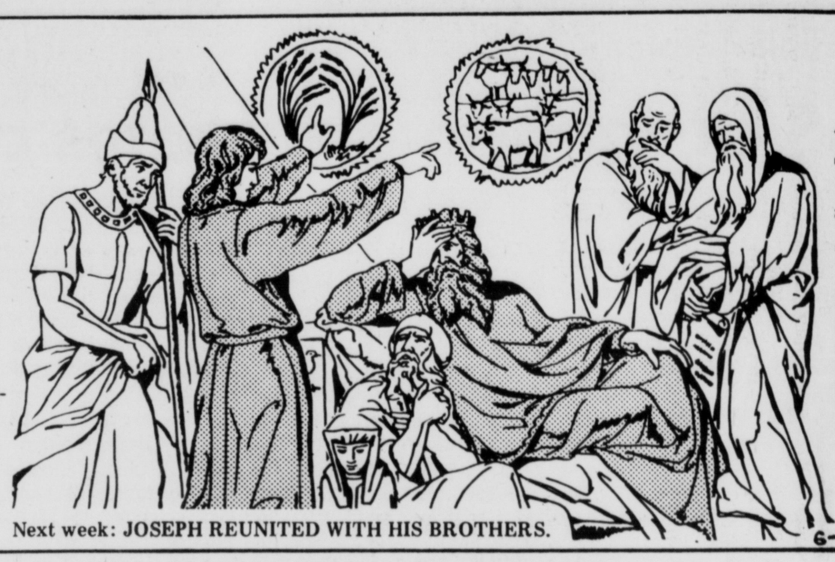
Joseph Interprets Pharaoh's Dreams

Then Pharaoh sent (for) Joseph, and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon . . . and Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream and there is none that can interpret it.

—Genesis 41:14-15

In prison, Joseph had successfully interpreted the dreams of two inmates. One of them, a butler for Pharaoh, was eventually released and returned to his position, as Joseph foretold. Two years later, Pharaoh had two dreams—one of seven fat cattle devoured by seven lean ones, the other of seven lean ears of corn devouring seven fat ones. When none of the Egyptian seers could interpret their meaning, the butler told his master about Joseph's gift. Pharaoh sent for Joseph, who predicted seven years of plenty and seven of famine. He also advised Pharaoh on conservation methods to prevent the famine. Pharaoh, impressed, made him ruler of all Egypt.



Next week: JOSEPH REUNITED WITH HIS BROTHERS.

HE'LL NEED YOUR LOVING HELP FOR SO MANY YEARS TO COME

A child's world is as far as he can see — as far as he can hear — as much as he has known. You cannot just leave him to his own devices. Providing him with the ordinary creature comforts of home, food and shelter are not enough. You must provide food for the mind as well as the body.

A child's faith and trust are infinitely deep. When he is emotionally upset you must comfort and reason with him. During the formative years of his early teens he should be molded by persuasion and suggestion, that he may grow into a man of erudition and solid worth.

If you guide him along the road that will ultimately lead to good citizenship and right living you have not failed in your duty as a parent. There is no better way than by setting the good example of attending the church of your faith every Sunday, thus instilling the habit of regular church attendance in the formative years — for your child's happier adulthood.

Brezhnev visit plans in works

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the political fallout of the Watergate affair, preparations are going full steam ahead for the visit of Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev during which a new series of Soviet-American accords are to be signed.

Soviet and U.S. sources say discussions are in an active stage over an oceanographic research agreement, a cultural exchange agreement, an amended civil air transport agreement, and a possible agricultural agreement.

Whether President Nixon and general secretary Brezhnev of the Soviet Communist party also will conclude some kind of dramatic compromise or guidelines for the Soviet-American Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) remains unclear.

Soviet officials stress that they would like the Brezhnev visit scheduled for June 18-26, to be the equivalent as much as possible of President Nixon's summit meeting in Moscow last May.

Skepticism voiced

During that meeting, the United States and the Soviet Union concluded their first accord on limiting defensive and some offensive nuclear arms, drew up a declaration of principles to guide Soviet-American relations and concluded a bevy of scientific exchange agreements.

But American officials are skeptical. They say that Soviet-American relations have simply not developed enough in the last year to produce the same wealth of agreements as the Moscow summit meeting did.

In the Washington diplomatic community there is much speculation as to how the unfolding Watergate affair will affect the give-and-take between Nixon and Brezhnev.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers told the House Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday that Watergate had no discernible impact on the conduct of U.S. foreign policy. Soviet diplomats assert that the scandal is purely a domestic American concern which does not affect Moscow.

Soviet diplomats, in private conversation, are keenly concerned whether Congress will approve the administration's trade bill with its provisions for normalized trade terms (most favored nation status) for the Soviet Union.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has rallied strong support in the Congress against most favored nation status for Russia so long as the Soviet Union does not allow free emigration for Jews and other would-be emigrants.

It is generally expected that Brezhnev will make a brief visit to the Manned Spaceflight Center in Houston on June 22 — and spend the rest of that weekend with President Nixon at the Western White House in San Clemente.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

With the gypsy moth caterpillars moving in from the country to attack leaves in town, the townspeople who have been sympathetic, if detached, with the plight of their country neighbors, are now anything but detached.

In addition to their concern for their cherished trees, they also feel pretty squirmy about having the caterpillars dropping on their heads and arms and porch furniture.

However, you may be relieved to know that it isn't the gypsy moth which has made the sycamores go into an early decline. If you've driven across the Seventh St. Bridge as often as I have you'll know how they all look as if they're dying.

I asked John Bitzer about them and he assured me that they'll re-leaf once the wet weather ends. "They got anthracnose," he said, which is a disease brought on by prolonged wet weather.

Anyway, it has much the same symptoms as my disposition, so maybe that's what I've got — athracnose, brought on by a prolonged spell of very wet weather, with all the colorful leaves of imagination turning brown and shriveling up, and the whole disposition going into premature hibernation.

My only hope is that a prolonged spell of warm sunny weather will come along soon enough so that we can all re-leaf, at least enough to complain about the heat. When things heated up so suddenly this week, I went digging through last summer's clothes to find something cool to wear, and, in common with a lot of other women I talked to, discovered again that I must have made it through the whole of last summer with only two dresses. Anyway, that's all I've discovered so far.

You and your baby

If you are bottle feeding

The last of three articles directed at the caring of your baby during his first few weeks of life at home.

Bottle feeding — Hold him in your arms or on your lap. Be sure that milk is in the nipple. Touch the nipple next to his mouth and he will turn and grasp the nipple with his mouth. Hold the bottle so that it sticks straight out at the right angle to his mouth.

The nipple hole should be large enough so that milk drops slowly from the bottle when it is held with the nipple down. The cap should be loose enough so that air bubbles can enter.

Halfway through the bottle, stop feeding and "burp" the baby. Hold him on your shoulder and pat him gently on his back until he burps. Or hold him over your hand and pat his back and gently rub his stomach. He will usually burp up some air, and often a little of his formula.

Be sure to protect your clothing with a diaper or other covering. It is much easier to clean up than is your clothing.

How often to feed

Feed the baby when he seems hungry. If he takes less than six feedings a day and still takes a normal amount each day, you are lucky. (A "day" means twenty-four hours, not just the daylight hours.) Most babies will fall into a pattern of 6 or 7 feedings about 3 to 5 hours apart. If your baby is more irregular than this, you can get him on a more regular schedule by waking him a little early or by letting him be hungary a little longer. It is easier and better to get a regular schedule by working from the baby's own schedule than by just deciding he will be fed at certain times whether he is hungry or not.

After the first several weeks, most babies will begin to sleep through one of their feedings. Most parents prefer the baby to skip the night feeding rather than a daytime feeding. If your baby chooses to give up the wrong feeding, don't hesitate to wake him and feed him at the usual time so that he will, hopefully, give up one of the night feedings.

How much to feed

If you are breast feeding, you don't have to worry about how much to feed — your baby decides. Most mothers who are breast feeding worry at some time about whether they have enough milk. Actually, too little milk is extremely rare.

The best reassurance is your baby's normal activity and growth. Another way to reassure yourself if you are really worried is to offer him a bottle of formula just after he has finished nursing. If he is still hungry, he will take several ounces and take them in a hurry, if he doesn't you can be sure that your milk is satisfying him.

Most babies, after the first few days take two to three ounces of milk per day for each pound of body weight. Most bsbies want to have six or seven feedings each day. For a 7 lb. baby, this would mean fourteen to twenty-one ounces of formula a day, or two and one-half to three and one-half ounces in each of 6 or 7 feedings.

You might begin by offering three ounces in each bottle. When your baby begins to empty the bottle completely at two or three feedings each day, add one-half ounce to the bottle at each feeding. Stay a little ahead of the baby, and let him decide how fast he wants to increase his intake of formula.

If your baby takes much more or less than two to three ounces per pound per day, discuss his feeding with a nurse or doctor. Don't worry about how much he has taken at a single feeding, most babies will have times when they just aren't hungry and other times when they take more than you expect.

Spitting up

Most babies spit up some of the milk after many of their feedings. The milk seems to overflow from the baby's mouth. It is often curdled from the normal action of the stomach. The problem is more of worry and messiness than of health. Babies who spit up a great deal grow as fast and as strong as those who do not.

There are several tricks to reduce the amount of spitting up. But none of them works all the time, and most babies will continue some spitting up even when all the tricks are used.

Burp the baby carefully mid-way through the feeding, at the end of the feeding, and a few minutes after the feeding.

Prop him in an infant seat or cradle with his head a few inches above his stomach for 10 or 15 minutes after each feeding.

Try feeding a cold formula directly from the refrigerator.

Nixon subpoena debate just talk

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington is indulging itself in high level debate on whether President Nixon can be required to testify before the grand jury investigating Watergate.

It's the kind of debate that politicians, professors and lawyers, who consider themselves constitutional experts, love. Nothing can come of it unless some move is made to summon the President —and there is no indication that any such move is contemplated.

The debate was stirred by a report in the Washington Post that Watergate prosecutors felt the grand jury had received testimony which needed explaining, and if it were not for the fact that he were President, Nixon would be summoned to explain.

Those supporting the theory of a grand jury subpoena argue that the President is not above the law just because he is President. The Supreme Court has said that no citizen can claim immunity from testifying before a grand jury because of his position.

Newsmen have special protection under the First Amendment's press freedom guarantee, but the Court ruled that in some circumstances, newsmen must testify.

The supporters of the idea of presidential testimony before the grand jury ask: Why should it be necessary to go through an impeachment procedure when a single appearance by the President before a grand jury could possibly explain everything satisfactorily?

FBI chief-to-be

President Nixon congratulates Clarence M. Kelley, former Kansas City, Mo., police chief and long-time FBI agent, as he nominates Kelley as new FBI director. Nixon called Kelley "the best man in the country" for the top law job. (UPI Telephoto)

FBI director-designate long-time agency lawman

By United Press International

Clarence M. Kelley, 61, has spent all his adult years in law enforcement. He has seen the field move from the era of the gumshoe with an instinct for the criminal mind to computers which can tie even the most remote county sheriff to the records of the FBI.

Kelley was born in Kansas City, Mo., in 1911 and joined the FBI in October, 1940, as an agent working bank robbery and extortion details. He became an inspector and special agent in charge of FBI offices in Birmingham and Memphis.

Retiring from federal service in 1961, he assumed the post of chief of police in his home town.

Over the years, the lean look of a young FBI investigator turned into the broad expanse of an administrator, and in Kansas City the chief was recognized from a distance as frequently the biggest man on the crime scene, both in size and stature.

Kelley is known in Kansas City as a firm administrator who has kept the police department completely free of corruption, which was a hallmark of the city's gangland days under "Boss" Tom Pendergast. He has prided himself on being frank with newsmen whenever possible and enjoys calling most reporters by their first names.

Kelley serves on the Narcotics and Organized Crime Committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police and is a member of the organization's executive council. In 1970, he was given the J. Edgar Hoover Gold Medal as the outstanding police chief in the country.

Associates say he has an intense interest in people, "and he never says anything bad about anyone."

"I've known him pretty well for 12 years and never once have I heard him say anything bad about a single person," a police officer said. "If he can't say anything good he just says nothing."

While Kansas City chief, Kelley pressed for increased use of modern technology as a means of fighting crime. Computers were introduced in 1968, and in recent years this has been expanded so that many patrol cars now have direct access to computerized files, speeding the process of checking drivers' licenses and stolen cars.

Kelley has emphasized decisive and speedy action on a massive scale in capturing criminals. An example of this is Operation Barrier, which sets up roadblocks throughout the city to apprehend fleeing criminals.

Kelley, who is 6 feet tall and weighs 215 pounds, spends as much leisure time as he can find in yard work at his home, but his devotion to the job leaves him little time for hobbies.

"Every night he takes home a stack of reports and other professional material to read," said a longtime associate. "He's a prolific reader —of everything. He reads anything he can get his hands on and is interested in everything."

Kelley and his wife, Ruby, have two grown children. Their 30-year-old daughter, Mary Ruth Dobbins, and her family, which includes two small children, (Kent 4 and Kelley 3) live in Kansas City, as does a son, Kent C. Kelley, 25. Mary Ruth is a graduate of Auburn (Ala.) University and the son is a graduate of Baker University at nearby Baldwin City, Kan.

The elder Kelley received his bachelor's degree in 1936.

Ann Landers

Babysitting pains

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been firm with our own children. They are well-behaved, considerate youngsters, 5 and 7. But we are having such serious difficulties with the children of some close friends that it is threatening our relationship with them. Please help.

Our two must be in bed at 8:00 p.m. on week-days and 9:00 p.m. on non-school nights. Frequently these friends bring their two to sleep at our home. They are permitted to watch TV and roam around the house as late as 2:00 a.m. Apparently, they are also permitted to help themselves to whatever is in the refrigerator at home so they do the same at our home. These youngsters eat all evening long.

My husband and I like this couple very much but their kids are a pain in the neck. Do we have the right to discipline them when they are in our home and their parents are present but unconcerned?--

Annoyed

Dear Ann: Yes you do and I hope you will. And don't be surprised if the kids like it. Children don't really enjoy running wild and doing as they please. They like to be told who's who and what's what. It gives them the idea they are worth bothering about and that someone cares about them.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 42-year-old career woman (divorced), not a giddy teenager or a desperate widow, so please keep this in mind when you answer.

The man I am dating asked me what I wanted for my birthday. I said, "I'd like to think about it." Then he added, "Let's put a ceiling on it--say $50." I was stunned. Now I wonder if he thinks I'm a gold-digger, or if he's had some bad experiences with aquisitive females. (Or can it be that he is just plain stingy?) What's your best guesstimate, Ann?--

No Shrewdy In Shreveport

Dear S.I.S.: He sounds like a practical, hard-nosed businessman who has learned that it's better to prevent a problem than let it happen and then try to fix it. His approach might be somewhat unromantic, but it's straight and honorable and I see nothing to criticize.

Warn bride?

By Jean Adams

TELL HER? (Q.) My best friend is the same age as I am, 18, and she is engaged to my brother. They plan to be married when he gets out.

How can I tell her, without hurting her, that she will be in a terrible mess if she marries him? He is lazy, sloppy and has a bad personality.

I should know, because he is my brother. She is adorable and I would hate to see her hurt.

A Sister Who Knows in West Virginia

(A.) Your friend knows your brother, too. She has made up her mind about him. She may be as good a judge of character and personality as you are. Her judgment may even be better than yours.

If you tell her what you think about him she will probably believe you are just trying to be meddlesome. It may cost you her friendship and make her even more determined to marry him.

Say nothing, and pray that they will live happily ever after. Don't stop with praying. Do all you can to see that your prayer comes true. About the biggest thing you can do is to keep your mouth shut at the right times.

The bidding:

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

Some plays go against the grain, but are eminently correct because the circumstances call for them.

South finds himself in six notrump — due to a mild attack of optimism by North — and West leads the queen of hearts.

East wins with the ace and returns the nine of spades. Declarer takes the trick in dummy and plays a low diamond to the king, West following suit with the nine.

If declarer now cashes the queen of diamonds he finishes down one, because it turns out that East started with four diamonds to the jack. But if declarer instead crosses to dummy with a spade or a club and returns a low diamond, finessing the eight, he makes the slam.

Looking at all four hands, one can see that South would be well advised to take a diamond finesse through East. But it is not so easy to prove that the finesse is right if you see only the North-South cards. After all, West might have the J-9 or J-9-x of diamonds — in which case finessing the eight would look terribly silly.

But, despite this possibility, the finesse is the right play. There is a strong probability that West started with six hearts, since East did not return a heart at trick two. This, in turn, substantially increases the chance of East's having been dealt four diamonds, and, more particularly, the jack.

The finesse would surely not gain in every case where West is known to have six hearts, but it would be the winning play in the overwhelming majority of such hands. Declarer is therefore likely to do best in the long run by adopting the indicated percentage play.

AAA holds meeting

MOUNT POCONO — Approximately 500 delegates and guests gathered at Pocono Manor Inn Thursday for the 67th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania AAA Federation.

The federation is comprised of 40 AAA clubs in Pennsylvania with a combined membership of over 1,200,000 motorists.

The annual meeting's business sessions opened Thursday with an address by Charles J. Gallagher, president of the American Automobile Assn.

Gallagher outlined areas in which AAA organizations throughout the country have become the last institutions directly concerned with motorists' rights. He cited the recent fight to preserve the Highway Trust Fund and steps to bring emission control and safety devices within range of economic reason.

The delegates also participated in a give-and-take panel discussion centering on emission controls, inspection, and air quality standards from the Environmental Protection Agency, the Air Quality Board of Philadelphia, the Department of Environmental Resources, the Bureau of Traffic Safety, and the Chrysler Corporation.

Millionairess backs unknown

'Cock Robin' stages return

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A Detroit socialite artist who now makes her home in Las Vegas is gambling a quarter of a million dollars to back an unknown singer to hopeful stardom.

Jeanne Wilson, whose late father-in-law was Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, is sponsoring a vocalist named Cock Robin.

"He's a beautiful man and dynamic performer," said Miss Wilson on a foray to Hollywood.

A lady of indeterminate age, high style and a pretty face, Miss Wilson hopes to huckster and promote her secret singer before the man actually makes a public appearance.

Most of what she says is cryptic and veiled in nutty mysticism.

"Actually, we're calling his debut the return of Cock Robin. He was killed, you know, 229 years ago when that famous nursery rhyme was written," said Miss Wilson, who is a portrait painter and sculptress.

"Now he's returned to life in a new reincarnation. It's never been proved that we don't transmigrate from one form of being to another."

Miss Wilson was stone cold sober. She also was perfectly sincere.

Asked the real name of her protege, Miss Wilson blinked in disbelief. "That is his only name. Cock Robin."

She was reminded that he was dispatched from this vale by a sparrow with an arrow a couple of centures ago.

"True," she admitted, "but he's not seeking revenge.

"I can tell you this much. Cock Robin was born in Montana. And he's not married. So far as I know he never has been. And since I took over his career no one else has seen his face."

Miss Wilson first encountered her singer, with whom she has no romantic attachment, she said, singing in Las Vegas last summer.

"He won't make a public appearance until later this summer," Miss Wilson said. "The big unveiling will be for a charity event either in Los Angeles or New York."

So far as anyone knows Cock Robin could be a double for Tiny Tim, but Miss Wilson describes him as tall and handsome.

She has him stashed away in the mountains somewhere. He is exercising his voice, jogging, writing poetry and communing with nature. He might even be out hunting sparrows.

"Oh, I don't think so," Miss Wilson said. "I'm not even sure he knows which sparrow shot him. If he does, he isn't saying."

Scare tactics you say? Hardly! Punishment for a first offense can be as much as $2,000 fine and 5 years in jail, or more depending on the State you live in.

ESSC trustees given development report

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Board of Trustees of East Stroudsburg State College has accepted a report by College President Darrell Holmes on the college's future physical and program development.

Holmes reported progress made in developing special education teaching, a nursing program, a medical technology program to be run in conjunction with the General Hospital of Monroe County, and a communications major at ESSC.

Holmes also reported on the progress of a committee of administrators, faculty and students established several months ago to plan the college's growth for the balance of the century.

The committee is currently working on the college's growth over the next 10-15 years in compliance with a directive from State Commissioner of Higher Education Jerome Ziegler that all state colleges submit such plans to the State Board of Education to aid in compiling an overall state growth plan for colleges and universities.

Among the ESSC developments planned for, according to Holmes, are a Leadership Management Institute including hotel management training to be instituted this fall, and an Industrial Technology program to be implemented between 1980 and 1985.

In other business, the board:

— Approved the recommendation of the building committee to rename the college infirmary the Flagler-Metzgar Health Center in honor of two physicians who contributed strongly to the college's growth: Marshall Metzgar and the late Charles Flagler.

— Approved a recommendation by the building committee to rename the college's new men's dormitory Lenape Hall.

— Elected new board officers for the coming year; they are President Kennard Lewis of East Stroudsburg, Vice President Cosmo Lalli of Scranton, Treasurer Lester Abeloff of Stroudsburg and Secretary Mrs. Mary Leister of Stroudsburg.

— Approved a recommendation to change the college radio station frequency from 88.5 to 90.3 to prevent its interference with television channel 6 and to prepare for eventual boosting of the station's power from 50 to 250 watts.

Raceway to test Tunkhannock supervisors' law

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

LONG POND — The Tunkhannock Township amusement ordinance, requiring permits for all outdoor entertainment, will be put to the test tonight when Pocono International Raceway sponsors a "free" concert — minus the mandated permit.

Jack Kalins, raceway director for corporate operations, emphasized Thursday that the raceway would not seek a permit for the event.

The concert, open only to those with tickets for the Goodrich Radial Challenge Series and the Camel 500, will begin at 7 p.m. Dancing on the straightway will follow at 9 p.m.

"If we apply for a permit for this, we'd set a precedent for everything we hold here at the raceway," Kalins said.

The scope of the ordinance, passed by Tunkhannock supervisors in the wake of last year's Concert 10 in July, has yet to be defined. Whether it will apply to any entertainment held at the raceway for race patrons is the issue at hand.

Lester Brown, solicitor for the township, told supervisors this week that, in his opinion, if the concert is held without a permit, the raceway would be violating the ordinance.

He contended that the raceway is collecting a "reward" for the concert by allowing only ticketholders to the weekend races to attend.

Kalins defended the concert saying, "This type of race draws a young crowd, and by furnishing entertainment we would hope to keep the people at the raceway. This way, they would not be roaming around the mountains."

According to Kalins, the raceway is footing the entire bill for the concert, featuring Seatrain and Ralph, two rock groups.

Attendance at the concert, is not expected to exceed 5,000. Advance ticket sales only reached 220 by Thursday.

The concert issue represents another round in the battle between the raceway and Tunkahnnock's supervisors.

After last year's mud-soaked debacle, the raceway was refused permits in April for two of the six rock concerts scheduled for this summer.

Permits for the other four were granted only after supervisors attached a provision that if the first concert proved a problem for the township in any way the remaining permits would be revoked.

Even these permits were issued over strong objections from Tunkhannock for what they considered "hard rock" concerts.

Kalins, however, assured residents that the scheduled concerts were not "hard rock." He said the groups to be featured has played elsewhere with no problems.

The raceway also informed supervisors that only 10,000 persons would be permitted to attend the concerts. The raceway, Kalins said, would provide adequate security for each concert.

Advance ticket sales for the first concert, to be held June 16, had only reached 100 by Thursday. The concert will feature Guess Who and Dr. Hook.

Tickets for two other concerts, tentatively scheduled with Sly and the Family Stone on July 7 and Three Dog Night on Aug. 4, have yet to go on sale.

In fact, Kalins said, "only handshake deals" with the artists have been made.

And plans for the fourth concert have not even been formulated yet.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record's circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column is designed to answer any questions or solve any problems — consumer, government or anything else. Send questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions must be in writing and signed in full. No telephone calls, please.

Q. I'd like to know why just because my wife and I make a little money, we can't get our daughter into the Head Start program at East Stroudsburg State College.

W.R., East Stroudsburg R.D. 5

A. Three reasons. You must fall within a certain income bracket — and it's really low. (We're not publishing it, in fact, because it's rather embarrassing for families enrolled). Suffice it to say we found out you're making four times the maximum amount. Secondly, a child should have an educational or developmental need. And third, the center only holds 30 children. At least twice that many families who fall into the above categories apply.

Q. Being a government employe, my boss notifies me at every election I can't engage in politicking. Are all other government employes — local, state and county — subject to the Hatch Act?

C.V.S., Tannersville

A. If their positions are in a program utilizing federal funds. The federal Hatch Act, prohibiting political activity by government employes, applies to most state agencies, reports the Pennsylvania Attorney General's office. Local governments can enact their own versions of the act, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Q. In February, I sent for an embroidery kit to Greenland Studios in Miami. The kit I received wasn't what I wanted, and I requested two other as replacements. They still haven't sent them.

J.M., East Stroudsburg

A. A stitch in time. We've been assured by Greenland you'll have the kits in two to four weeks.

Q. I had Tri-State Roofing begin work on my house. I paid the owner more than three-fourths of the money. He left the job and refuses to complete it unless I give him more money. On the contract he signed it says the balance will be due upon completion. What can I do to get satisfaction?

W.T.D., Neola

A. Wait. Your attorney has contacted Tri-State's lawyer, and you've asked the Bureau of Consumer Protection to get into the act too. Tri-State's owner, Jack Gillin, tells us a different story. While he was hospitalized in April, he says you had his men do $1,400 in work not included in the contract, including wiring, painting and a sub-floor. We weren't on the job; hence, the legal eagles will have to ascertain who wins.

236 diplomas awarded at Stroudsburg graduation

STROUDSBURG — After being called "not just the hope, but the future of America" by U. S. Rep. Joseph M. McDade, (R-10th) 236 seniors at Stroudsburg High School received diplomas in commencement exercises Friday night.

In a ceremony drowned out at times by truckers on nearby Interstate Rte. 80, the seniors heard Valedictorian Julia Miller call for the need to care more for others in everyday life.

"We have landed men on the moon while we waste the lives of starving millions," said Miss Miller. She quoted poet Carl Sandburg and described love for others as a guiding force in life, concluding with a declaration of love for all present.

Class Salutatorian Pauline Jack emphasized the importance of family life and self-awareness. "Like a farmer, we have planted a seed and watched it grow . . . As we take a new step forward we must justify our life," she said.

McDade, the commencement's main speaker, reminded the class members of the challenges facing their generation and stated, "there is a call to greatness which each of you must heed to achieve."

"People worked day and night to make sure you had the benefits of an education," said the Congressman. "Share your pride with them tonight as they shared their love with you through twelve years of school . . ."

"If you will apply the same determination which has brought you to this night of triumph, and never falter in your tasks, however, difficult, then you may someday know the true meaning of life," McDade said.

"If you will walk with honor and dignity upon the face of the earth, not oppressing the weak or the helpless, but lending them your strength to make them strong, then you may someday know the true meaning of life."

Describing the three worlds facing the graduates — employment, higher education and community life — McDade said, "history glitters with the names of men and women who rose to meet challenges . . .

"I don't believe America has lost the capacity to produce leaders when they are needed," he added.

Bell announces exchange transfer for 200 customers

STROUDSBURG — The Bell Telephone Co. reported Friday that more than 200 customers now served by the Stroudsburg exchange will be transferred on June 12 to the Tannersville central office.

Newly-assigned telephone numbers in the 629 series will become operative for the 200 subscribers on that coincident with the delivery of the 1973 Pocono Mountains-Monroe County telephone directories.

E. B. Chura, Bell's local manager, explained that customer requests for telephone service in Stroudsburg continue unabated and the growth trend, evident in recent years, is not likely to diminish.

"We recognized a long time ago that our Stroudsburg central office couldn't continue indefinitely as the center of communications for the entire area," he said. "Necessary space for additional switching equipment was a principal factor," he said.

"The alternative, was to establish a separate and individual central office to serve the telephone needs of customers in rapidly expanding outlying localities," Chura continued. "That was done at Tannersville in 1966, when 1,671 customers located in that vicinity were transferred to the newly-established exchange. Since that date, the total number of telephones in the exchange has doubled.

"In 1971, a new central office was constructed at Tannersville with a price tag of $651,000, including switching apparatus, to keep pace with growing customer needs," he said. "The equipment is new, versatile and efficient, assuring a high level of reliable, quality service.

Two extensive outside wiring and cable improvement projects are also under way in the vicinity of Tannersville, at a toal cost of $190,000. Eastwardly along L.R. 45023, 1,512 feet of underground cable and 6.1 miles of aerial cable will be placed.

The other project extends southwardly toward Bartonsville, with 4.1 miles of aerial cable to be erected. Also on this route, one manhole and underground conduit will be constructed, so that an existing aerial crossover may ultimately be eliminated at the intersection of highway routes 455 and 45033.

"Service is our dominant theme and we must be prepared to provide the quality of service that the customer has a right to expect," Chura commented.

Two enter guilty plea to charge of larceny

STROUDSBURG — Two men pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of larceny Friday in Monroe County Court in connection with taking 12 cases of beer from Mount Pocono Beverage Sept. 19, 1972.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Edward Lokuta of Scranton and Robert Mackesy of Miami, Fla. who were released on $3,000 bail after admitting the crime.

The two were indicted on a burglary and larceny charge.

In other court action Miss Rita Smith of East Stroudsburg was sentenced on a marijuana possession charge. Miss Smith admitted possessing a small amount of marijuana on May 4.

She was placed on probation 30 days and fined $300 by President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

In another case before Judge James R. Marsh, a larceny charge against Sylvia Oakes of Stroudsburg was dropped when facts in the matter wouldn't support the charge.

Miss Oakes waived the right to a jury trial. She was accused of taking a purse belonging to Mara Lee Shoesmith of Cresco, but the defense claimed she found the purse on Wyckoff's Department Store's snack bar counter Jan. 26, 1973.

Claims fighting chance

Hobbs campaigns quietly

By JOHN L. MOORE
Ottaway News Service

HARRISBURG — There are no "Hobbs for governor" posters on the wall; there are no "Hobbs for governor" staffers bustling about, and even the candidate can't say if he'll be battling his way through the gubernatorial primary next spring.

But Frederick H. Hobbs, the Republican senator from Schuylkill County, says he is in the race. He also says he sees a fighting chance for the Republican nomination — if not for governor then for lieutenant governor.

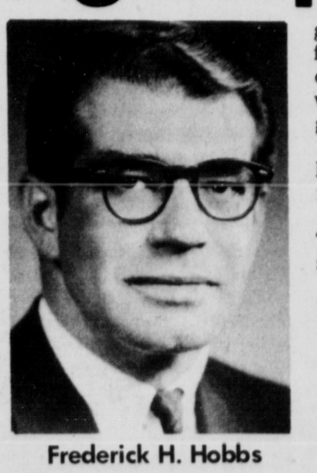
In fact, an hour-long talk with the 39-year-old Hobbs leaves one thinking his sights may be set more for the seat Lt. Gov. Ernest P. Kline has than for the governor's chair occupied by Milton J. Shapp.

Hobbs has been an announced candidate for many months, but thus far it has been a quiet candidacy: Since January he has made no impassioned partisan speeches on the senate floor, nor has he issued any press releases aimed at a state-wide audience on major issues.

And Hobbs, who has spent seven years in the Senate, acknowledges this.

He also acknowledges that the time is just around the corner, possibly as soon as late summer, when he must become more vocal.

But he expects to spend until late August waging his quiet campaign, talking to state Republican leaders, talking to potential contributors and trying to get "a much clearer picture of who is really being considered by the end of August."



Frederick H. Hobbs

And Hobbs will also be watching Pittsburgh Congressman John H. Heinz III, for Hobbs believes Heinz is the only potential GOP candidate with an "option" on the gubernatorial nod.

If Heinz makes the race, Hobbs wants to be his running mate.

Hobbs sees northeastern Pennsylvania as his corner ("my base") and says the northeast could be crucial to a gubernatorial candidate from Pittsburgh like Heinz or to someone from Pennsylvania's other major population center, Philadelphia.

"It is very, very difficult to carry Pennsylvania without the support of the northeast counties and I have support in the northeast counties."

DER completes spraying

STROUDSBURG — The Department of Environmental Resources (DER) completed spraying for gypsy moths in Monroe County and began treating acreage in Pike County Friday.

John Bitzer, district forester, reported 380 acres of Pine Ride development in Lehman Township sprayed.

The state will continue spraying in Pike Monday if weather permits.

Pike County is the last county to be treated in the state. DER has sprayed a total of 26,420 acres in eight counties.

Monroe County residents worried about not yet having their property sprayed may still receive control treatment through the Monroe County back-up programs.

Planning need recognized

STROUDSBURG — All 20 Monroe County municipalities now either have a local planning commission or are establishing one.

When Tunkhannock Township supervisors voted Wednesday night to establish a five member planning and zoning commission, the last municipality in the county to establish a board fell into line.

Although Ross and Polk Townships are still forming their commissions, the Tunkhannock Township action means all municipalities are on the road to planned land use through local boards.

Municipal planning commissions throughout the county are in varying stages of development — some merely have a board, others have a subdivision ordinance, and six have a zoning ordinance.

Subdivision ordinances regulate the growth of developments. Zoning ordinances designate sections of the municipalities for specific types of use.

Barrett, Paradise and Stroud Townships have advanced to zoning ordinances as have the boroughs of Delaware Water Gap, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Those townships with subdivision regulations or soon to have subdivision regulations are:

Chestnuthill, Eldred, Hamilton (effective June 13), Jackson, Middle Smithfield, Paradise, Pocono, Smithfield, and Tobyhanna Townships.

Eagles get Gabriel for Jackson, Baker

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Roman Gabriel, who has been unhappy under the new ownership of the Los Angeles Rams, was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles Friday for two players and three future draft choices.

In exchange for the veteran quarterback who was the National Football League's most valuable player in 1969, the Rams obtained former Ram Harold Jackson, a wide receiver, and running back Tony Baker, plus Philadelphia's first round draft choices in 1974 and 1975 and their third round pick for 1975.

Gabriel, 31, was in Philadelphia last week to talk to Eagle General Manager Mike McCormack about the possibility of being traded to the Eagles. Under terms of his no-cut, no-trade contract with the Rams, Gabriel has the right to refuse any trade but he wasn't expected to turn down Friday's deal.

The Ram star has been asking to be traded away since earlier this year when Los Angeles acquired a potential rival at the quarterback slot in John Hadl, the former San Diego Charger signal-caller.

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom said, "It is my hope that the trade we've just completed will help us put a winning team on the field this season and in the seasons to come."

Gabriel sued the Rams for $5,000 last month and asked the Los Angeles Superior Court to determine the status of his contract with the Los Angeles team. However, he withdrew the suit a few days before he and his attorney, Ed Masry, flew to Philadelphia for discussions with the Eagles.

Neither Gabriel nor Masry were available for comment.

'Super Steve' back on track

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Del Unser drove in three runs as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres, 5-1, and Steve Carlton picked up his sixth victory of the season.

Unser doubled home two runs in the sixth after giving the Phillies a 2-1 lead in the fourth with a sacrifice fly.

The Padres used singles by Ivan Murrell and Nate Colbert and walks to Fred Kendall and Rich Morales to take a 1-0 lead off Carlton, 6-7, in the fourth.

The Phillies got even when Willie Montanez tripled and scored on a Greg Luzinski single. Luzinski took third on a Tommy Hutton single and scored on Unser's fly to deep center.

Singles by Montanez and Hutton knocked out loser Steve Arlin, 2-3, in the sixth and Unser greeted reliever Rich Troedson with a two-run double. Unser scored on Larry Bowa's double.

Dodgers pair key in victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Davis moved within nine hits of the 2,000 lifetime mark when he cracked a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Tommy John, with eighth inning relief from Pete Richert, gained his 100th major league victory Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Mets, 5-3.

Davis' blow, his ninth homer of the season, highlighted a four-run outburst off Tom Seaver who suffered his fourth loss against seven wins. With Los Angeles trailing 2-1, Dave Lopes, whose two-base throwing error permitted two Met runs to score in the first inning, opened the sixth with a triple. One out later, Davis powered a 2-2 pitch into the rightfield bullpen to put the Dodgers in front 3-2.

Trio hits Yankees to victory

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Designated hitter Jim Ray Hart blasted two homers and Roy White and Bobby Murcer each hit one leading the New York Yankees to an 8-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Friday night.

Hart homered in the third and seventh innings, while White and Murcer cracked four-baggers in the third off loser Gene Garber, who gave up five runs in 2 2-3 innings.

Sparky Lyle collected his 12th save of the season in relief of starter George Medich. The Yankee southpaw retired Cookie Rojas in the seventh inning with the bases loaded.

John Mayberry's 54th RBI produced the run for the Royals in the fourth when the lefthanded batter slapped a long double to right center to send Rojas home from second base.

Gene Michael's single to right scored Ron Blomberg for the first Yankee run in the second inning.

Houston nips Pirates, 4-3

HOUSTON (UPI) — Roger Metzger cracked a two-run single in the seventh and Jim Wynn made a game-saving throw in the eighth to spark the Houston Astros to a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Metzger's single, coming with two out and the bases loaded, broke a 2-2 tie.

The Pirates then came back in the eighth to score on consecutive doubles by Al Oliver and Willie Stargell. Then Manny Sanguillen singled to right and Stargell headed home with what would have been the tying run, but Wynn's throw to catcher John Edwards nipped Stargell to end the inning.

Stargell had driven in the first two Pirate runs with a home run in the third behind Oliver's single. It was his 17th homer, tops in both leagues.

The Astros scored in the second on singles by Bob Watson and Lee May and a sacrifice fly by Edwards. After the Pirates had taken a 2-1 lead, Houston scored three times in the seventh to win.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Danny Walton slammed his fourth home run to support the brilliant two-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven as the Minnesota Twins blanked the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 Friday night.

Walton rapped a two-out homer in the seventh inning off loser Dave McNally, 5-7, after Jerry Terrell had tripled and scored on Rod Carew's single in the fourth inning.

Shocking loss

Shue quits Bullets post; may be new Sicksers coach

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gene Shue said Friday he is quitting the Capital (formerly Baltimore) Bullets of the National Basketball Association because he doesn't want to leave his native Baltimore.

However, he also confirmed he is negotiating with the Philadelphia 76ers, who were left without a coach last month when Kevin Loughery signed a five-year coaching contract with New York of the rival American Basketball Association.

Some of Shue's friends think he will quit the game entirely and devote full-time to his insurance business.

Shue has been restless since Bullets owner Abe Pollin (with whom Shue has not been comfortable) announced last year he was moving the team to Largo in the Washington, D. C. suburbs for the 1973 season. Shue, who played his college ball at nearby Maryland, indicated early he had second thoughts about making the move.

"Living and coaching in Baltimore was a beautiful situation. Now it is just not the same. They think I am Baltimore-oriented and I am. They are looking for somebody to fit better into the Washington scene."

That somebody might be former NBA great Elgin Baylor, whose hometown is the District of Columbia.

Shue hasn't explained why, despite his preference for Baltimore, he is negotiating with the 76ers.

Harvey Pollack, the 76ers spokesman, confirmed the negotiations but said Shue was only one of several being considered, among them Al Bianchi, Tom Nissalke and Jack McMahon.

Wood wins 14th; Allen slams 15th

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Wilbur Wood, who was defeated in his last two starts, tossed a five-hitter in picking up his 14th victory of the season Friday night and Dick Allen smacked his 15th homer to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

It was the sixth time this year that Wood has started with two days rest and it was his eighth straight victory over the Indians, who haven't whipped the knuckleballer since August 12, 1971. Wood, who didn't win his 14th game last season until July 23, struck out five, walked two and gave up solo homers to Charlie Spikes and George Hendrick in running his record to 14-5.

The White Sox staked Wood to a 3-0 lead in the second inning against starter and loser Milt Wilcox on run-scoring singles by Eddie Leon, Pat Kelly and Carlos May.

After Spikes drilled his 13th homer of the year over the leftfield fence in the fourth for the slumping Indians, who have now lost eight straight, Allen put one into the leftfield seats following a double by Kelly in the fifth.

Cubs nip Cincinnati on homer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rick Monday's two-run seventh inning homer boosted the Chicago Cubs to a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati Friday and offset a pair of homers by the Reds' Tony Perez.

Monday's homer, his 12th of the season, wiped out a 5-4 Cincinnati edge, gained chiefly thcugh Perez' leadoff homer in the fourth and his two-run blast in the fifth.

The pitching victory went to Jack Aker, the third Cub reliever who came on and held the Reds scoreless in the eighth and ninth innings.

Perez put the Reds in front 3-2 with his solo blast in the fourth and after the Cubs had tied it at 3-3 on Randy Hundley's run-scoring triple the Reds' first baseman slugged another homer in the fifth with Bobby Tolan aboard to put Cincinnati ahead once again, 5-3.

Home runs lead Texas to victory

ARLINGTON, Tex.(UPI) — Boosted by home runs from Jeff Burroughs and Rico Carty, the Texas Rangers beat the Boston Red Sox 5-2 Friday night.

The offensive power enabled Pete Broberg to notch his second victory of the season against five losses and dropped loser John Curtis to 3-6. Burroughs' homer opened the fourth inning and gave Texas a 3-1 lead at the time but Reggie Smith homered for Boston in the sixth to make it 3-2.

Then, in the seventh, Dave Nelson led off with a single and after Toby Harrah flied to right, Carty lined Curtis' first pitch over the left field wall.

Barber withstands pressure to hold IVB lead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Jim Barber, a sophomore pro, responded to the heat from the weather and the pressure from other hungry young golfers to shoot a five-under-par 67 Friday and move into a three-stroke lead after the second round of the IVB Philadelphia Golf Classic.

The 24-year-old Barber, who has won only about $6,000 in two years on the pro tour, went into the day's round at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club with a one-stroke lead. He carded five birdies on his second straight bogey-free round for a 36-hole total of 132, 12 under par, and three strokes better than Forrest Fezler and Tom Jenkins.

Right behind them at 136 was another Barber named David, no relation, Larry Ziegler, Hale Irwin and John Schlee.

The five bunched at 138, six under par, were Dave Stockton, a former PGA champion, Dick Rhyan, Mike Reasor, Babe Hiskey and Tom Weiskopf, who had a one-under 71, his 15th consecutive sub-par round—best on the tour this year.

Gay Brewer, Charlie Sifford, Bert Yancey, Bob Wynn, Joe Porter and George Knudson were at 140.

Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus, hoping to pick up some cash this week and practice for next week's U. S. Open, were at 141 and 143, respectively, and made the 36-hole cut, which was at 145, leaving 70 players for the final two days of the 72-hole event.

The field, which included the top four money winners in Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton, who just made the cut at 144, Trevino and Weiskopf, had delighted tournament sponsors, but it was the little-known and experience-lacking pros who were grabbing the play away from the luminaries.

Jim Barber, who had to qualify earlier in the week for the tourney, is in his second year, as is Fezler, who came close to his first victory at the Gleason Inverrary Classic earlier this year.

Jenkins, a former Houston University star, only qualified for the tour last year and David Barber is a former assistant club pro who also had to qualify here Monday.

The long-haired Jim Barber, one of three unrelated Barbers playing in the tournament, said of the round that followed his opening day 65, "Nothing has gone bad. I haven't had a bad break yet."

Barber, who receives financial backing from his 70-year-old grandmother, his father and uncle to supplement his meager earnings, said he liked Friday's round "better than Thursday's because I had heat on it."

The family involvement extended to his brother-in-law who, although knowing nothing about golf, was drafted to caddy because Barber had neglected to arrange to reserve one prior to the round. The cheerful Barber said his brother-in-law "kept quiet, just like I wanted him to do."

At various points, many of the "rabbits" threatened to overtake Jim Barber but he continued his consistent pace, shooting par going out until he dropped in putts of 5 and 15 feet on the eighth and ninth holes for birdies.

Coming in, he had birdies on the 12th, 14th and 16th holes.

Charley Sifford — black 'pioneer' on pro tour

PHILADELPHIA — Baseball, of course, had its Jackie Robinson. Women's tennis had its Althea Gibson. And professional golf had and still has Charley Sifford.

Back in the mid-1950s, Charley Sifford, now nearing the half-century mark, became the first black golfer to join the professional golf tour. It wasn't very easy from the beginning for Sifford.

"As a kid, my family was very poor and being from the South, there obviously weren't many opportunities for me to play golf," said Sifford Friday after shooting a steady one-under-par 71 in the second round of the IVB Philadelphia Golf Classic at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

"There just wasn't an opportunity for me that other young kids might have had," he recalled. "As many other kids did, I got into the game as a caddy, but that didn't mean I would be able to play.

"We would play when it was getting dark or before the course would open in the morning," he recalled, "and we would use what we could find, broken clubs and beaten balls, because we couldn't get anything better."

Sifford joined the tour in the 1950s after fashioning a name for himself in all-black tournaments, where the grind was rugged and so were the courses.

"It was tough. Sometimes people would not let me play because of my color, but of course they wouldn't say that openly," he recalled.

Sifford has since that time earned a pair of victories on the tour, the 1969 Los Angeles Open and the 1970 Hartford Open. But still the door is closed to the famed Masters Tournament for himself and other blacks.

"I don't think I would take an invitation just so someone could say a black had played," he said. "I want very much to play there, but I also want very much to be deserving of the chance. A victory now would do it for me or any of the others," he said.

At the halfway point in this $150,000 tour event, Sifford stands at 140 after opening rounds of 69 and 71, four-under-par and well within a chance at the top prize of $30,000. His putter was hot Thursday, but balked a bit Friday.

"Well, Thursday I needed it because I just didn't hit the ball well," said Sifford. During the first round he one-putted 10 times, one-putting seven straight holes, chipping in on 14 and then one-putting 15.

"See what I mean?" he said with a laugh. "Today, I had putts which were very makeable but they just weren't dropping for me." He missed from five feet for birdie on the first hole, from 10 feet for birdie at nine and from 20 feet for birdie at eight after a great tee shot.

But he did make a 15-footer for par at the fourth hole, which later in the day stopped a birdie binge by Jack Nicklaus.

"That was the only real putt I made today," said Sifford. "I birdied five, but I had a shot at an eagle and I two-putted for birdie at 17. Other than that, I could have used some putts.

As he nears 50, does he have any thoughts as to what he might have achieved had he been born in a better time period?

"Naw, golf's been very good to me and to my family. But I still think I can win now, maybe here. I'm not too old. Just let me start dropping the putts again and I'll be up there when the year is out," he said.

* * *

After leaving Sifford, I got a chance to follow Jack Nicklaus around for a few holes and what transpired was just an awesome display of golf.

Nicklaus birdied 16 and 17, bogeyed 18, birdied one, two and three before double-bogeying four when he went deep into the rough and left the ball there with his second shot before missing a 12-footer for bogey.

One the first two holes, one and two, the "Golden Bear" dropped birdie putts of three feet after hitting magnificent second shots.

On the par-five third, he cleared the creek fronting the green in two with a two-iron second shot, chipped to within two feet and made the putt to go three under for the day and two-under for the tourney to that point.

But on the 235-yard, par-three fourth, a hole which Bruce Devlin called "probably the toughest par-three we play all year, right up there with 16 at Pebble Beach," Nicklaus' two-iron tee shot veered left into heavy rough.

His first try at hitting the nearly-hidden ball resulted in his hitting it just a few feet and his third shot rolled 12 feet past the hole. He missed coming back and the famed hole had done in another golfer.

* * *

The early-morning tee times again proved beneficial as Forest Fezler, who had a 68 Thursday, added a 67 for a nine-under 135 and Larry Ziegler, a stick boy for the National Hockey League St. Louis Blues when not on the tour, fired a 67 for 136, both were early starters.

Weekend of road racing to open at Pocono today

LONG POND — Pocono International Raceway opens its road racing season today with a full weekend of activity scheduled on the 2.8 mile course.

The Goodrich Radial Challenge Series, which includes cars such as Datsun, Toyotas, Gremlins and Pintos, will run a pair of 100-mile races today.

The Camel GT Series for cars such as Porsche Carreras, Corvettes and Cameros, will run the first 500-mile race of the season Sunday.

Both road racing divisions are sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Assn.

Although IMSA is only two years old, officials feel this weekend will be the biggest in its history. The Goodrich entry list numbers 101 cars, the largest ever, while 87 cars have been entered in the Camel event.

Cars in both events will practice in separate sessions. Goodrich entrants will run a qualifying session from 2 to 3:30 p.m. today with the feature events at 4 and 5:15.

Practice for the Camel race starts at 9 a.m. Sunday with qualification from 9:45 to 11:15. The 500-mile race is scheduled to start at noon.

Purse in the Goodrich race is $10,000 while the Camel GT drivers will be shooting for $20,000.

Secretariat in last romp before Triple Crown bid

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretariat galloped two miles effortlessly over the training track at Belmont Park Friday in preparattion for Saturday's $151,200 Belmont Stakes and a shot at the elusive Triple Crown.

"He's in the best condition of his life, even better than before the Preakness," claimed trainer Lucien Laurin as the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner then spent the rest of the morning quietly grazing outside his barn.

Six three-year-olds were entered for the testing one and one-half mile classic with Secretariat the odds-on favorite at 2-5 to become the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, and the ninth horse in history to romp to glory in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

Sir Barton, way back in 1919, was the first to pull off the greatest achievement in thoroughbred racing. He was followed by Gallant Fox (1930), Omaha (1935), War Admiral (1937), Whirlaway (1941), Count Fleet (1943), Assault (1946) and Citation (1948).

Scheduled to line up against Secretariat, the pride and joy of the Meadow Stable which has syndicated him for $6,080,000, were the entry of Sham and Knightly Dawn, My Gallant, Pvt. Smiles and Twice A Prince.

There was a chance Knightly Dawn would be scratched if the track remains fast according to trainer Frank Martin, but that didn't faze Laurin one way or the other.

Secretariat was prepared to go to the front shortly after the start if the pace was slow or come from behind in the stretch if the pace was fast, Laurin said.

"It doesn't make any difference regardless of how the race is run. If he has to go to the lead, he will. If he has to come from behind, he'll do that too. If they are walking he'll go right by them, and they will have to catch him. If it's a good pace, then he will catch them. That's all," Laurin said.

The French-Canadian trainer, who won the Belmont with Amberoid in 1966 and with Riva Ridge last year, believes the pace will be realistic.

"Even if Frankie (Martin) scratches Knightly Dawn there is always My Gallant," he pointed out. "My Gallant went to the front the other day. Look at his fractions—:47 3-5, 1:11 3-5. What's wrong with that for a mile and a half race," he asked.

My Gallant, the Blue Grass Stakes winner, finished a disappointing ninth in the Derby. The son of Gallant Man, the Belmont Stakes record holder with a 2:26 3-5 clocking.

Japanese woman fires 71 to lead in LPGA tourney

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Japanese star Cheko Higuchi fired a two-under-par 71 for the second straight day Friday to take a four-stroke lead over Kathy Whitworth and Mary Mills at the midway point of the $35,000 LPGA Championship at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Miss Higuchi, 27, of Tokyo, five times the Japanese women's champion, shot an even par 36 on the front nine and then carded three birdies and a bogey on the back for a 71-71--142 after two rounds of play on the 6,130-yard, par 73 course.

"I felt I could play even par today," Miss Higuchi said. "I got a lucky birdie on the 17th hole. I'll be nervous tomorrow. I'd rather be in second place right now."

Miss Higuchi, who has never won a tournament during four trips to the United States, had been tied with Miss Whitworth at 71 through the first round.

Miss Whitworth, the leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, bogeyed the last three holes Friday, however, to fall four strokes off the pace.

Miss Mills, 33, of Laurel, Miss., shot her second straight even par 73 to tie Miss Whitworth, 33, of Richardson, Tex., for second place. Donna Caponi Young, 28, of North Hollywood, Calif., and Judy Rankin, 28, of Midland, Tex., were tied for fourth at 147.

Local favorite Jane Blalock, playing in her first full tournament since completing a year-long suspension, shot a 71 for the day to tie three other women at 148. Miss Blalock, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H., and Miss Higuchi shared the day's low score.

The field of 75 women golfers was trimmed to 55 for today's third round. The cutoff was at 13-over-par 159.

Nixon may take anti-inflation act

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Administration decided this week that something had to be done about the soaring inflation that has been shaking the domestic economy and the U.S. monetary position abroad.

In response to pressure mounting for months, White House sources said Friday that among the possible actions under consideration are a price freeze and a gasoline tax increase.

The sources said President Nixon will disclose his plans some time next week. The President himself hinted he had something in mind.

The President's closest advisers are divided on the need for controls, with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz possibly the strongest advocate of a "hands off" economy. The President himself traditionally has been an opponent of controls and agreed to them during his various "phases" more or less reluctantly.

The White House decision to slow down inflation followed a report from the Labor Department showing that wholesale prices continued to move up an abnormal clip.

Prices jumped in May at a 24 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate, almost matching the 27.6 per cent rate of March, the biggest increase since Korean War days. Farm prices in May bounded up at an annual pace of almost 50 per cent.

Abroad, the dollar was faring poorly, losing more ground in the major European markets. A big part of the dollar's trouble, according to the banking community, has been the lack of action by the Nixon Administration against inflation.

The Administration generally has confined its defense of the dollar to warning speculators that the joy ride soon will be over. Melvin Laird, the President's new domestic affairs counselor, said the speculators will "regret their action.",His comment at midweek bolstered the dollar somewhat but it sagged later.

Consumer credit in April recorded its smallest gain since last September — $1.74 billion, seasonally adjusted — but the rise still was well above the $1.24 billion of April, 1972. A sharp drop in personal loans was a big reason for the slower pace, and a Federal Reserve analyst suggested that many consumers ignored the loan window because they were "flush" with income tax refund money.

The banking industry made another round of prime loan rate increases — a quarter point jump to 7½ per cent. It reflected an increasing tightness in the credit markets, a goal of the Fed. The prime rate is available to large business borrowers.

Pay-price control hint sparks mart

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hints from President Nixon that stiffer wage-price controls could come as soon as next week helped stocks rally on a broad front for the second consecutivs day Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading remained light, however, as investors waited for definite steps by the Nixon administration to combat May's depressing 4.7 per cent jump in the wholesale price index reported Thursday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 10.38 to 920.00. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.19 to 107.03. The average price of a NYSE common share advanced 42 cents.

Advances ran far ahead of declines, 1,071 to 391, out of 1,755 stocks across the tape.

Volume came to 14,050,000 shares, against 14,160,000 traded Thursday.

The market forged ahead Friday, soon after President Nixon hinted at renewed Phase II-style controls before a commencement audience at the Florida Technological University.

Commenting on the Big Board's advance, Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. said "A mere word from President Nixon has become the emotional foundation for Wall Street. A lack of real anti-inflation action in the near future would deal investors a serious blow."

After the close, the Federal Reserve Board announced a ½-point rise in discount rate —the fifth this year —to 6½ per cent, effective Monday for ten of twelve district banks. The rise in discount rate —that district federal reserve banks charge on loans to member lending institutions —follows on the heels of an increase to 7½ per cent in the prime lending rate by many of the nation's largest banks.

Steels and aircrafts moved slightly higher. Rails and motors were mixed in fractions.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange moved broadly higher in quiet trading. The Amex index rose 0.10 to 22.57. Turnover came to 2,400,000 shares, compared to 2,230,000 shares changing hands Thursday.

Soap opera star issues challenge to night actors

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Beradino, the daytime star of television's "General Hospital," is disgruntled by discrimination against soap opera performers and, like Bobby Riggs, has issued a $5,000 challenge.

In a fit of pique—as distinguished from a towering rage—Beradino purchased a full-page ad in Daily Variety. It read in part:

"I, John Beradino, a daytime actor, personally challenge any nighttime dramatic actor (including Emmy Award winners) to an acting bout—provided the material of both participants is of equal dramatic value and is acceptable to the principals involved.

"The dramatic challenge is for $5,000, winner take all, the details to be worked out when the challenge is met and the money is placed in escrow."

This is not a publicity stunt because John could well lose his money. He is also incensed at the television academy's failure to provide an award category for daytime dramatic actors and actresses.

"I hope the whole country is aware that over the years we've not been included in any categories of any stature," he said.

"Apparently the academy membership considers us unworthy. They mention us in the nominations, but it's just a form of appeasement. When it comes to the awards we're a late scratch."

Beradino has played Dr. Steve Hardy in the ABC series for 11 years and, for one reason or another, has never won an Emmy.

"Taking out that ad is a way of drawing attention to the discrimination."

Beradino was asked if he would exchange his daytime acting for a job in a nighttime drama. The question startled him.

"Well, yes," he said defensively. "But not that I'm downgrading daytime shows. It's just that nighttime work is easier and it would probably pay better."

Cicadas violate ordinance

Insect mating call noisy wonder

By DAVID M. ELSNER
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

CHICAGO — TSH-EE-EEEE-E-OU!

You may not be able to pronounce it, but all that counts is that the 17-year cicada can. It's his mating call (or close enough, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture) and when millions of the insects finish popping out of the ground in the next few days, two people standing face-to-face in their midst won't be able to hear each other.

"They do raise an awful din," says Henry Dybas, head of the Division of Insects at Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History. Indeed, the cicadas will be violating Chicago's anti-noise ordinance. There's not much anyone can do about it though.

The 17-year cicada is one of nature's wonders. As its name implies, it comes around only once every 17 years, although no one really knows why. This is the year for Brood XIII, which covers Northern Illinois, Southern Wisconsin and Eastern Iowa. Other broods each come up in different years in other parts of the Eastern U.S. At one time there were 17 broods, but six are now extinct.

When the cicadas come, they do so in large numbers. Dybas once counted 1.5 million in a single acre of forest. (Dybas didn't count all 1.5 million; he counted the number in several square yards and extrapolated.)

Each female cicada lays from 300 to 400 eggs, which insures survival of the species. Birds, skunks, raccoons, snakes and other forest creatures drop whatever they're doing to munch on cicadas when the time comes. But there are always plenty left to mate.

Cicadas taste good

Cicadas provide up to a ton of "meat" per acre, Dybas notes. That's about double the amount of beef produced on the average acre of Illinois grazing land. Indians used to snack on raw cicadas, and Dybas says they still are a good source of protein. "They taste like a raw potato with a touch of avocado or clam juice," he says.

Others have used cicadas for other purposes. The ancient Greeks, regarding them as favorites of Apollo for their musical ability, caged them as pets and fed them leeks. The ancient Chinese ground them up in a potion that was supposed to cure sterility, impotence, neuralgia, rheumatism and the Evil Eye. (The Chinese used an annual variety of cicada for these purposes. Not only would 17 years have been a long time to wait for a cure, but the Chinese didn't have any cicadas of that kind. The 17-year cicada appears only in North America.)

Many people, particularly apple growers, don't like 17-year cicadas, however. Besides the male's shattering clamor, there's the famale's habit of damaging trees where she slits branch ends to lay eggs. Further, after the eggs hatch, the nymphs burrow as much as 12 feet underground, clinging to roots from which they suck sap. The weakened trees tend to produce smaller fruit. Cicadas, however, aren't as bad as locusts. Locusts will eat everything green in sight. Cicadas won't touch a thing except roots.

Biological clockwork

Once the nymphs dig into the soil, they stay there for 17 years, even though they have finished growing by the end of 12. Sometime during their 16th year they start burrowing toward the surface. As if by signal, they all emerge within a nine-day period. Entymologists believe the cicadas have some kind of internal biological clock.

After coming up, the nymphs shed their skins and pump out their transparent wings. A full-grown cicada is black, about an inch and a half long and has bulging orange eyes. It lives only several weeks, long enough to mate. The male makes his mating call by rapidly flexing an abdominal plate.

Sometimes, the cicada's call is sad. Dybas recalls walking through the Virginia woods one day after Brood II had come and gone. "All of a sudden I heard a single male, flying rapidly from branch to branch and calling for a mate," he says. "He waited 17 years to have some fun, and the poor little fellow missed the whole thing."

Met-Ed rate hike opposed

HARRISBURG — David Cortright, East Stroudsburg, testified Tuesday before the Public Utilities Commission in Harrisburg against the company's proposed rate hike.

Cortright spoke as a member of Pocono Community Action, a local citizens' group.

He testified that consumer and environmental considerations should enter in determination of company policies. He asked that Met-Ed cut back on advertising programs as increasing the demand for electric power was irresponsible in a time of energy shortages.

Cortright cited recent decisions in seven other states ordering power companies to stop policies of demand creation and promotional pricing.

Cortright, citing the company's policy of charging less per kilowatt hour as usage increases, called the present rate system unfair to low income, and moderate-level consumers of power.

I say, anyone for chess?

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

TANNERSVILLE — Upon asking a friend if he knew anything about chess, he quickly replied, "I dunno, what is it?"

At first I thought the poor fellow misunderstood my question, but, not wanting to jump to conclusions, I decided to quz my comrade further to discover if somewhere in his brain there lodged a latent familiarity with this mental sport.

I shrewdly designed a multiple-choice question (which even Bobby Fischer could answer) to evaluate my friend's chess intelligence. It read as follows:

A Nimzo Indian Defense is (a) a limited strategy used successfully by the Sioux Indians at the Battle of the Litle Bighorn. (b) an unlimited strategy used by North American Indians to expel early European colonists; only successful in theory. (c) Indria Gandhi's euphemism for defensively aiding, invading and occuping Bangladesh in their revolt against Parkistan. (d) one of the above. or (e) none of the above.

Surprisingly, my friend promptly replied by saying (e), which was the only possible correct answer of those given. This led me to the conclusion that he definitely had a latent aptitude for chess.

Expert questioners assert that my method of interrogation is not full proof, but I had enough confidence in my approach to suggest that my friend develop his talent and take chess lessons during the summer.

Fortunately, for chess beginners and buffs alike, the Pocono area will have its own resident chess authority and critic in the person of Frank Brady, international chess player and biographer of world chess champion Bobby Fischer.

Brady, a 39 year-old Brooklyn native living at Woodmount Lodge in Tannersville, intends to offer instruction in chess 7 p.m. every Tuesday during the month of June. The cost for a month's lessons is $30 per person.

Brady is, perhaps, best known for his biography of Bobby Fischer humbly entitled "Profile of a Prodigy." The first edition of the book was published in 1965, which was long before Fischer gained international prominence and became world chess champion by defeating Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union last year at Reykjavik, Iceland.

In 1968, Brady came out with a second edition of his book published by David McKay Co; the same people who brought you those literary bestsellers, "Dr. Atkins Diet Revolution" and Dr. David Reuben's "Everything You Always wanted to Know About Sex. . ."

Brady said his second was three times larger than his first book and has been selling considerably well in the last few years.

"I first met Bobby Fischer when he was 11 years-old at a United States Junior Chess

Friendship cools

Tournament that I organized in Asbury Park, N.J. I really don't remember much about him then, although I do remember his mother.

"However, I was always fascinated with his career. I was attracted to his style of playing — relentless, aggressive, brilliant — the complete chess player," Brady said.

Brady explained he and Fischer soon became good friends and were together quite often during the early 1960s. However, when Brady published his biography of Fischer in 1965 their close friendship began to cool.

"Bobby knew I was working on the story of his life, but when the first edition appeared one would have to describe his attitude as less than enthusiastic.

"He is a very private person and wants his personal life to remain private. He was quite upset and wanted to be left alone," Brady noted.

Because Brady was cut-off from building a close relationship with Fischer after 1965, his second biographical edition is primarily based on his own research and information that he has stored from past experiences with the chess champion.

Brady admits he has been hampered in some ways in writing the second edition because of his estrangement from Fischer.

"There are some questions that are impossible for me to answer such as why Fischer stalled for so long during the tournament with Spassky. Was he really holding out for more money or was he traumatized into inaction now that he had finally reached the summit of his career?"

Brady feels at this moment in time Fischer is probably the greatest chess player in the world, but he also indicated a desire to see a rematch between Fischer and Spassky for some date in the future. According to Brady, the Shah of Iran, Prince Ranier of Monaco and the Hilton Corp. have all expressed interest in backing such a tournament, although the Soviet government seems opposed to the idea.

"Fischer has already said he wants to defend his title once a year, even though he is only required to defend it once every three years," Brady explained.

On the other hand, Brady maintained that Makhil Botvinnik, a former world chess champion and staunch Communist Party member, has publicly opposed a Fischer-Spassky rematch.

"I believe the Soviets fear another humiliating Spassky defeat and would rather wait the full three years and groom 20 year-old Anatoly Karpov, a rising star in the Soviet chess scene," he said.

Brady, however, shows more confidence in Spassky's ability on the basis of the Russian's come-back performance in the last eight games of the tournament with Fischer.

Highways to the Poconos

STROUDSBURG — For the benefit of the gasoline conscious society that seems to be developing and to tie in with the Commonwealth's "Traveling Pennsylvania is a Gas Saver" campaign, Stan Iskowitz of the Town Motor Court & Cottages in Canadensis has mapped out special "gas saving" and time saving routs for visitors to the Poconos from the New England, New York and New Jersey areas.

"The failure on the part of the State of New Jersey to open I-80 is a cause of much inconvenience to our visitors" Iskowitz explains.

In response to the problems of his own guests, Iskowitz has mapped out some alternate routes he suggests that are actually faster in overall time spent on the highways and thus less gas is consumed by the cars.

Coming from New York City, instead of getting off I-80 and going through Hacketstown, Iskowitz instructs his guests to continue on 80 until it becomes New Jersey Rte. 206. Follow 206 to Newton and pick up New Jersey Rte. 94 which eventually goes back to Rte. 80. This avoids the heavy traffic and the bottleneck of Hacketstown. It also eliminates the truck traffic. Iskowitz estimates this way is about three miles longer but over ¾ hour less in time. The roads are also less winding than through Hacketstown.

For motorists coming from Long Island and the South shore, Iskowitz recommends taking the Verazzano Bridge and the New Jersey Turnpike to exit 13 where they will pick up I-287 and follow it to I-78. Across the border in Pennsylvania, I-78 becomes Pa. 22 and motorists can then pick up Rte. 33 North right into the Poconos.

Brady retreats to write

Brady pointed out Spassky was slowly learning Fischer's moods and methods in each passing game.

"A 36 game rematch instead of 24 games might ultimately work in Spassky's favor," Brady said.

Brady believes the rise in popularity of chess in the United States can be attributed to Fischer's charismatic success. He notes more money is being poured into professional and amateur chess tournaments, while manufacturers are producing more and more chess sets to satisfy an overwhelming popular demand.

Although this chess popularity might be construed as a passing fad, Brady maintains chess is definitely not an "intellectual hoola-hoop."

"I think chess is a fascinating and enduring passion. Once one is bitten by the chess bug it becomes a major thing in one's life," he said.

Brady only speaks from experience. He has taught nearly 2,000 people to play chess in adult education centers in New York City and has also taught chess in the New York Public Schools. A graduate of Queens College and the New School for Social Research in New York City, Brady has recently been appointed as an international chess judge or arbiter by the International Chess Federation. At 39 years-old, Brady is the youngest man to hold such a position, where the average age of an arbiter is 65.

In addition to this honor, Brady has served as a television commentator for ABC, PBS and several FM stations on the West coast during the Spassky-Fischer tournament.

Presently, Brady says he has escaped the hub-bub of the city to write three books in the quiet country surroundings of the Poconos. The books he intends to publish include "A Pictorial History of Chess", "The Life of Dr. Makhil Botvinnik" and "A Concise Gude to Chess Strategy and Tactics" designed for teenagers.

Pocono area to swing with jazz

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — "Good music, congenial atmosphere and righteous vibes" is the slogan used to promote a jazz fantasia beginning June 15 and continuing throughout the summer at Lone Pine Inn on Rte. 191 in Henryville.

Jay Cameron, musical director of the program and former owner of the Mainline Music store in Stroudsburg, describes "Lone Pine Jazz" as the cultural event of the Pocono summer season, where big name jazz artists as well as local musicians will appear at the Inn from 9:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

Kicking off the jazz fest on June 15 will be the Al Cohn Quintet. Cohn has accompanied Billy Holiday and has currently orchestrated a musical version of "Raisin in the Sun" called "Raisin." "Raisin" opened in Washington D.C. to rave reviews and will be moving on to New York City in the fall.

According to Cameron, Zoot Sims is scheduled to appear Saturday, June 30 to help open a big July 4 weekend. Sims was an original member of the "Four Brothers," a Woody Herman group. Sims has also toured Russia with Benny Goodman and has played solo saxaphone behind Sarah Vaughn on records.

Cameron along with Barry Kimmel, proprietor of the Lone Pine Inn; Don Gibbins, artistic director of the program and Bob Eshback, bartender, hope to attract

Pocono Playhouse to open

MOUNTAINHOME — Twelve weeks of Broadway style entertainment are in store for Pocono Playhouse audiences this summer when Rowena Stevens opens the doors of her famed theatre on Monday night, June 25, for her 27th consecutive season of "Broadway in the Poconos".

"The advance sale of season tickets has been heavy this year, and we have the golden opportunity to present a new musical with a major star, so we are happy to announce that the season has been extended for an extra week," commented Mrs. Stevens in announcing her full 1973 schedule.

"Stellar casts have been signed for three beautiful musicals and six plays that I'm sure will delight our audiences. We've also included a very amusing night club act as a special dividend for our wonderful patrons."

A sumptuous production of the fabled Broadway musical hit, "Mame," will start the season off with a two-week run, through July 7, starring Anne Russell, who stole playgoers' hearts last summer as Dolly. Miss Russell will be supported by a large cast of Broadway principals, singers and dancers to recreate the escapades of this gusty lady of the Twenties.

On July 9 the Playhouse presents George Gobel in a double-header: "George's Musical Night Out," the night-club act, complete with guitar, that has kept audiences in stitches from Las Vegas to the Copacabana, plus "Next," in which "Lonesome George" comes face to face with a lady sergeant in an Induction Center.

A week later, "To Tell The Truth" star Kitty Carlisle opens in Harold J. Kennedy's delightful comedy, "Don't Frighten the Horses," in which she plays a movie star who, as wife and mother, bets — not on the horses, but on her instincts to win the odds on mod behavior.

Cole Porter's exciting musical extravaganza "Can-Can" will be seen in all its zesty glory for two weeks, July 23 — August 4, outlining the story of the beautiful and notorious Pistache, whose Montmartre midinettes in the Gay Paree of the Nineties perform the dance of the title right up to the hilt. This opulent musical contains 14 of Porter's Hit Parade tunes, including "I Love Paris" and "C'est Magnifique".

Lovely stage and screen star Celeste Holm comes to the Playhouse on August 6 in the comedy "The Irregular Verb to Love," in which each family member's highly developed convictions result in unforeseen and hilarious consequences.

Next follows a monkey load of mischief in an exclusive club of race-horse owners starring Wilfrid Hyde-White, "The Jockey Club Stakes," one of the great comedy successes of the '73 Broadway season. "Not to be missed!" said Ed Sullivan.

On August 20 Eva Marie Saint brings her starring talents to one of the great works of Tennessee Williams, "Summer and Smoke," a play throbbing with passion, in which Miss Saint plays a minister's daughter. "A vibrant work of art," the N.Y. Times hailed it.

August 27 sees the arrival, direct from Broadway success, of "6 RMS RIV VU," a comedy by Bob Randall, starring Jerry Orbach and Louise Lasser as two strangers who are apartment hunting and accidentally get locked in. The N.Y. Post echoed other critics with "Humor, freshness and charm."

"The new musical with a major star Mrs. Stevens referred to is "Cyrano" starring Jose Ferrer, by the creators of "Kismet" and "Song of Norway." Ferrer will play the swashbuckling hero in this musical version — he won an Academy Award for the movie—from Tuesday, September 4 through Sunday, September 16.

Tickets are now available at the Playhouse Box Office and its agencies in Scranton (tel: 346-1666) at the Jermyn Motor Inn, and in Honesdale (tel: 253-1390) at Scureman's Pharmacy.

Playgoers in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Phillipsburg call EN1-0899, toll-free.

Jazz musicians synthesize from many styles

jazz buffs from the metropolitan areas of New York City and Philadelphia, while also offering the benefits of live jazz to local residents.

Cameron, a former member of the jazz committee for the National Endownments of the Arts, feels strongly about jazz and has always felt a desire to promote it in the Pocono area.

"I esteem jazz music as an art form — in some ways it is the most contemporary art form," he said.

Explaining why many people enjoy jazz, Cameron said, "Music listners recognize a melody and then identify with it. They like to hear it again and again, but at some point they assimilate it completely and tire of the same melody. This is where improvisation becomes important.

"Today, I believe listners who have particularly been brought up on rock music are ready for more than that format has to offer. Individual musicians who are able to make improvisation totally personal have gained prominence," Cameron said.

Cameron noted the language of jazz is a synthesis of historical statements by earlier musicians whatever their styles.

"Some players stay strictly within this language, while others use it to go on to a more personal expression," he noted.

Cameron expressed interest in enlightening the general public on the attributes of jazz. He described a swing beat as the characteristic aspect of jazz music that may alternate with other slower tunes or passages.

"The feeling imparted by improvisors who are exuding a happy, swinging feeling that makes you tap your foot, while also playing interesting harmonies and melodies — that feeling is the creme de la creme of jazz," he said.

Other musicians who will be appering at the Lone Pine Inn on a rotating basis include Keith Jarrett on drums; John Coates, jazz pianist at the Deerhead Inn in Delaware Water Gap and a music editor at Shawnee Press, Inc.; George Coleman, featured with the Slide Hampton Octet and Miles Davis Band; Lex Humphries, a top drummer from the Philadelphia area; Bill Goodwin, a percussionist featured with Gary Burton and a resident of Mt. Bethel; and Joe Farrell, featured with Maynard Ferguson, Thad Jones and Mel Lewis.

Cameron stated Bob Dorough of ABC television "Multiplication Rock" fame will also appear. In addition, David Amram, French horn player and first composer in residence at the New York Philharmonic, is scheduled to play at the Lone Pine Inn.

Local talent includes Bob Phillips, solo pianist; Flo Handy, singer; Mike Mellilo, pianist; Lehigh Valley Jazz Lab Band and some of the area's finest musicians working in the local resorts.

The late Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong was once asked by a reporter to define jazz. His reply was, "If you have to ask what it is, you'll never know."

Rep. says, 'Save the trails'

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Considering the "current conservation craze," it's a strange irony that progressive minded statesmen of the 19th and early 20th Centuries called for a vast network of public highways, railroads and turnpikes to connect the hinterlands of the United States.

Naturally, it was impossible for these elected officials to foresee the modern ulcerated businessman trapped in a web of auto congestion, or even comprehend the heavy fog of pollutants that descend upon the weary commutor.

These men obviously felt a modern transportation system would benefit the young country's overall strength and ultimately fulfill the patriotic desire of "Manifest Destiny."

Today, fewer politicians and statesmen are calling for macadem roads to replace the primitive, winding paths formed by America's earliest residents — Indians, wild animals, explorers and frontiersmen.

The new breed of liberal politician is instead screaming "conserve, conserve!," and is gaining wide support from such national environmental groups as the Sierra Club and the National Audubon Society.

Rep. George W. Gekas, representing the 103rd District in Pennsylvania's House, is one such public figure who has designed legislation that would preserve the state's scenic woodland trails.

During a recent speech to the Pocono Mountains Jaycees, Gekas said he is sponsoring two pending House bills, 189 and 190, which would create a scenic and recreation trail system throughout Pennsylvania.

House Bill 189 is primarily concerned with acquiring land or rights-of-way along several scenic paths in the state. It would empower the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) to administer the trail system and purchase the land needed.

The second bill, 190, pertains solely to the Appalachian Trail. This piece of legislation would allow for state ac-

Antique buffs hit garage sale

By BEATRICE GARFIELD

The garage sale is a fairly recent American phenomenon.

Now, in addition to the curio shop, the auction sale and the antiques show, it provides another delightful field for the antiques-buff to romp in.

For years it was a simple affair — a speedy, practical solution to the problem of disposing of the flotsam and jetsam which accumulates in a large-family home.

Outmoded appliances, old garden tools, odd dishes, fragrant balsam pillows and outgrown toys were all gathered together, propped up on benches and shelves and offered for sale at bargain prices in and about the family garage.

The sales were held once, possible twice, in a life time — first when the children had left for college or their own establishments and again, perhaps, when the family was giving up the old house for smaller quarters.

But somewhere along the line someone discovered that out-of-date lamps, old trunks, embroidered Spanish shawls, turn-of-the-century flower vases and old butter churns attracted eager buyers willing to pay absurdly high prices — and so the "organized" garage sale was born.

Several shrewd operators began to shop around for wares at flea markets in order to assemble enough stock to run a series of sales.

In time the events became "regulars" like those which are held in the "Going-out-of-business — must sacrifice!" shops which go on for years and years in metropolitan areas.

Buyers are attracted by the informality of the atmosphere, the innocence of the seller and the implication (sometimes valid) that "there is gold in them, thar hills."

For the sale-holder there are many advantages.

He can open his stand at his own convenience — unlike the regular store-keeper who is obliged to serve the public at regular seasons and hours.

Also the expenses, compared to those of the antiques-shop owners, are minimal. Display arrangements and parking facilities are simple — if they exist at all. The fixtures are hardly the handsome showcases one finds in galleries. On the contrary, the impression given is that the sale is a one-time affair, hastily gotten together.

The garage-sale dealer offers no bills of sale and no

Trails seen as escape from pollution

quisiton of land along the trail, and also provide for improvements necessary to make the Appalachian Trail conform with the National Trails System Act.

"I would like to see a statewide trail system so hikers or campers could easily walk from Erie to Philadelphia's Independence Hall," Gekas said.

He felt the unique blending of hiking trails with Indepedence Hall not only serves to show conern for man's traditions and achievements, but nature's as well.

Gekas places his two bills under the umbrella of the Pennsylvania Trail System Act, which he feels "not only panders to hikers and campers, but is more importantly an overall conservation measure."

In his conservation efforts, Gekas has confronted several trail-blocks, which mainly involve the cost of his planned program. He originally asked for $1.5 million to fund the trail system, but because of legislative opposition, he is willing to compromise with minimal appropriation bills of $250,000 with more funds promised later. Pennsylvania's state budget for this year is approximately $4 billion.

Other opposition to his Pennsylvania Trail System stems from operators of snowmobiles and motorcycles, who would be barred from using certain sections of the trails.

Gekas explained an essential part of his bills is to set aside specific areas from noise and emission pollution caused by motor vehicles.

"I recognize the reality that visitors will have to drive to a certain spot to get to the trails, but to have motor vehicles in the entire area would defeat the major purpose of conservation," Gekas said.

In dealing with the problem of rights-of-way, Gekas feels civic groups or private landowners would donate properties, since these groups would definitely benefit from a well-organized Appalachian Trail System.

Gekas explained rights-of-way would vary between 10 or 15 feet along most of the trails, but at every 25 miles 100 feet on each side of the trail would be needed.

He noted maintenance of the trails would come under the jurisdiction of the DER and local hiking and camping clubs that dot the Appalachian Trail from Maine to Georgia.

A columnist for the "Harrisburg Patriot" has said the Gekas bills "would help to eliminate right-of-way problems the National Appalachian Trail is forever running into along the 2,000 miles, Georgia to Maine. These bills would give the green light through Pennsylvania."

Gekas stressed his concern for conservation by stating if all his other legislative projects failed, he still would be more than happy if his bills for scenic and hiking trails were passed.

"If these bills are successful, I might even spend the rest of my time shooting pool." he quipped.

guarantees that refunds will be made if the articles turn out to be replicas — an obligation which most reputable antiques-dealers will assume.

But life is no bed of roses for the seller. For one thing there are laws in certain areas which restrict the number of sales which may be held at one address in a given period of time. (Be sure to check the rules about this if you are planning to hold a sale.)

Also, he is frequently resented by bonafide dealers, many of whom disparage the integrity of the garage-sale merchant to customers.

And there are even more serious problems. The "Johnny-come-latelies" frequently have little knowledge of the value of many collectibles, and in their ignorance may sell valuable objects for mere pittances.

The experienced collector, however, welcomes garage sales.

Having long ago become used to the warning "caveat emptor" (buyer beware) and to buying "as is" at the auctions, he has learned to depend upon his own astuteness. He doesn't miss the formal written guarantee. On the contrary, he often outwits the merchant who is new to the game and pitifully unfamiliar with origins and values.

One garage sale holder we know rejoiced when he was paid ten dollars for an old-fashioned picture of game birds which had gathered dust in his attic for decades. He would have wept had he learned that the purchaser was offered seventy-five dollars the very next day by a collector of American sporting prints.

Another seller boasted that he "really got a sucker" when he sold a little yellow "ash-tray" decorated with bats and pagodas for seven dollars.

Little did he dream that he had sold an antique Chinese enameled bowl that was worth many times seven dollars.

One dealer marked the little pottery cup decorated with a picture of King Edward VIII (Later the Duke of Windsor) two dollars saying, "I can always come down if I have to."

He did not have to, for the buyer knew that, because Edward abdicated before his coronation all the coronation souvenirs were highly collectible. He cheerfully paid the two dollars, knowing that the cup was already worth ten!

Now if you should come upon any of the Edward VIII mementoes at garage sales, and they're priced reasonably, buy them.

(We'll never tell the garage-sale holder their true value!)
